EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

PRINCE ALEXANDER, of Bulgaria, is the earthquake shaking up the eastern part of Europe.

THIS year the Democratic party is the one that is ruled by the bosses, while the Republican party has not been influenced at all by so-called leaders.

ACCORDING to the almanac, autumn will not begin until the 22d of the month. Some warm weather may be expected again before summer is over.

MRS. VICTORIA MOROSINI SHELLING is getting her name in print again. She is said to have deserted her coachman husband for her father's luxurious home.

THE organ of the whiskey men, published in Philadelphia, endorses Wolfe for Governor. Just now, the whiskey men and a few deluded Prohibitionists are laboring for the same object.

THE Anarchists of Chicago are not subdued, by any means. They still indulge in public meetings and incendiary speeches, demanding the acquittal of their recently convicted leaders and denouncing the newspapers and law-abiding people without stint. A few executions may have a sobering effect upon them, however.

MRS. ELIZABETH ROGERS, the newly-elected Master Workman of a Chicago district assembly K. of L., distinctly states that she is "bitterly opposed to anarchy." It may be taken for granted that a sensible woman who has tested the benefits of law and order in her own household, would have a strong dislike for the crazy notions of labor destroyers.

IT IS STATED that the almost forgotten political organization which flourished in 1855-60, the Know Nothings, has been recuscitated in the suburbs of Chicago, and is growing rapidly in membership. There is no call for such a party in this country, but is it not remarkable that it should take root and grow, in view of the action of a part of our foreign population which favors anarchism, communism, socialism, and other un-American isms.

MR. CHAUNCEY BLACK, the Democratic nominee for Governor, is not enthusiastically supported by anybody, outside of that stronghold of Jeremiah Black Bourbonism, York county. Mr. Black will not receive the vote of a corporal's guard outside of his own party, and he is woefully weak in that. Democratic factional Bourbonism has defiantly raised the Black flag against liberal Republicanism and it will be treated accordingly.

ISN'T this Gubernatorial candidacy of Wolfe a very strange affair? He is a man who, while always scheming for advancement, never rose to prominence in his own Congressional district. The Republicans in this district have had reason to select only their strongest men to oppose the Democratic majority, and when has Wolfe been thought of? Never. Yet the Prohibitionists, who we supposed were wise men, have nominated him for Governor, merely because he chose to make a speech or two advocating their doctrines.

Trade Topics.

Throughout the country a decrease of mercantile failures was reported during the week, says the Pittsburg Commercial, and such misfortunes are most frequent in the Western and Pacific States. The railways are handling more goods and scarcity of cars is reported on leading lines of transportation. Banks, locally as well as generally, have their loanable funds in good employment, and the New York bank statement is reflected at large in the current of banking in all parts of the country. The surplus, or idle funds, is less than at any time since 1883 at this season of the year.

In dry goods there has been an excellent volume of trade, and from the East it is reported that the textile mills of the New England and Middle States are well employed on orders, and that the condition of the industry is better than for several years past. It is a noticeable fact that in cotton manufactures this country is competing successfully with England in the Chinese trade. The raw material has not been in active demand during the week and declined in the speculative market, and wool has been selling rather more freely, but there has been no softening in prices. There is even some expectation of a further advance, based on London advices. Fine washed fleeces have been in active demand during the week. In woolen goods it is said that there have been times when the demand was equally large, but at no previous date have the wants of so large a population been represented by so small a quantity per capita between the mills and consumers. There is but little probability for any decline in prices in these commodities.

The speculative markets have had a week of dullness, except in grain. Petroleum has ranged within the extremes of a cent and transactions have not been more than 4 per cent in volume of the preceding week. Stocks of this staple are gradually increasing, but this is thought by many to be only a temporary effect of new fields, which will permanently amount to no more than a supply of the deficiency existing prior to their discovery. In grain the markets advanced early on reports of frost, and denial carried the market below the starting point, although the export demand for corn was increased. Large receipts have been the cause of weakness. Pork and hog products advanced, and it is considered probable that should the money market become easier higher prices and greater activity would be simultaneous results on all speculative markets. The present strength in provisions, however, is attributable to manipulation rather than to either increased demand or decreased supply. The prospects for continued increase in general trade are favorable.

Ten Years Without Shoeing.

My horses have been barefoot ten years, summer and winter, and they do as much as thousands of others that are kept shod as if their lives depended on it. Thus I cut off the expense of shoeing and the expense of injury from ill-fitted work. There is less difference between shoes and no shoes, even upon icy road than you imagine. However sharp your calks, a snowball held by the shoe often raises them off the ice or you find they are "a little dull" when your horses go sprawling. A horse used to calks strikes out forcibly if he slips to make them hold—and slips all the worse if they fail to do it; one who knows he is barefoot keeps his feet flat on the ice, takes short steps and will get safely across almost any slippery place if he does not draw too hard. There are generally a few days every winter, however, when going barefoot is rather lively on the whole, but if the unshod horses wants shoes for ice he ought to have them pulled off when he comes to deep snow or mire at any season.

Shoes are dangerous not only to the horse that wears them but to others. The young horse I bought last winter had sharp shoes which I pulled off at once. Shortly after he gave his mate a kick in the belly which might easily have been fatal had his foot been ironclad but a severe superficial bruise and a great swelling was the only damage done. A large, powerful mare of mine gave me a kick on the side of my leg just above the knee, and taken wholly unaware I was landed nine feet distant very much doubled up and hardly knowing for a moment what had happened. A good sharp toe-calk would have made a bad mark just then, but her barefoot, very likely leveled up with dirt, and flat as a pancake, caused no injury whatever. A team constantly hauling on hard, gritty roads may possibly need shoes; the average farm horse is better without. If any farmer requires more work than a team can do barefoot, when once used to it, he needs more horses.

The Earthquakes and what they Signify.

During last week the severest earthquake shocks ever known in this country shook the land from the Atlantic ocean to the broad bosom of the Mississippi river. Not only did they shake the land, but all above it to an extent that damaged many noble buildings beyond repair, bringing them down upon the heads of the inmates, often with fatal effects. South Carolina as a state was the centre of this disturbance and historical old Charleston City suffered most disastrously, and even now its surviving inhabitants are in terror because of a recollection of the frightful event and their horrors of its repetition. To the victims of this catastrophe they are paying their last respects ere they give them a burial. Its horrors have been accurately and fully described in telegraph dispatches published elsewhere.

The cause of these earthquakes is not known, and the theories given are legion. By some it is thought to be the gradual cooling of the earth, which is a probable theory, because of the relation between earthquakes and geysers. Invariably, after an earthquake a new geyser appears in some part of the world. We expect to hear of new ones being discovered now. We have heard it intimated that displacements of the earth cause these violent and destructive disturbances. The earth being transferred in location by the work of mining for minerals causes a sort of a readjustment of lost equilibrium. This theory does not meet with our approval. We believe a much more likely one to be the softening of what is called the "Solid South." Our Democratic friends may as well know that the South cannot be depended upon by them any longer. It is rapidly becoming softer and more impressible. It is susceptible to outside influences and, as it becomes more mellow, the tremor is caused. The Democrats are to blame for this, because they have done all they could to solidify it, when they were aware that a reaction must come sooner or later. This earthquake has shaken the people of the South into a realization of the fact that their future safety depends upon changing their politics, and hereafter they must give the Negroes an opportunity to vote. It was more destructive to property and more universal in the terror it caused than any battle of the war. But if the people of that land will reform they need not fear an earthquake. A man who lives all right has no reason to care whether he be swallowed up by an earthquake or blown away in a cyclone. If his life is correct he is prepared for any visitation of Providence, and will usually live to a good and happy old age.

Prohibition in a Bad Plight.

The Prohibition party is now in a worse predicament than ever before. Their State Chairman is of the same opinion as this paper—that Charley Wolf was the wrong man to nominate for Governor—and he has resigned. We are truly sorry that a party which pretends to be the champion of such a noble cause has fallen into such evil repute. It injures a work which, until recently, has been prosecuted with vigor and success and with hopes of speedy victory. The cause of true temperance has been set back half a century by a few indiscreet advocates of it who refused to listen to wise counsel. There was a time, not long past, when all the friends of Prohibition could rally together under one common banner. Now, that a few have separated from the others and gone off by themselves, the entire cause is weakened. How hearts could be stirred and hard drinkers made to give up their cups at the lively old temperance meetings; now it is almost dangerous to go to a temperance meeting, lest the question of politics be introduced. While good and bad men are often divided almost equally on political questions, good men all desire to favor moral reforms, while it is natural for evil men to oppose them. For this reason, it is inexpedient to mix moral reforms with politics. They should come up on a separate and direct issue which each man can act upon unhindered by any other considerations. Until the friends of temperance unite on this policy, nothing can be accomplished.

Begging the Question.

The discussion going on between the Democratic Watchman and a certain other paper is not to the point. It has been proven that the Watchman has given orders within two years past, and everybody knew that such was the case, as all business establishments occasionally give orders. Even if it could be proven, however, that these orders were given for wages due (which is questionable), it would still be an avoidance of the original subject. It has nothing whatever to do with the present political situation in this State.

The truth is, the Democratic Watchman is ashamed of its silly twaddle about orders and coupons at the nail works in this place and has thus side-tracked the issue. Another truth is, that everyone is beginning to realize that the system in vogue at the nail works is one of real convenience for the workmen and is simply a new and ingenious method of keeping the accounts. There is no store order about it, and therefore the production of an order given by the Watchman cannot affect the matter in anyway. Clearly, the Watchman has given orders, and the Bellefonte Nail Company has not. The Democratic Watchman and the Philadelphia Times have published numerous silly falsehoods. Don't give them a loop-hole through which they can crawl out.

The Subscription Plan of Politics.

The peculiar features of the Henry George canvas for Mayor of New York City seem to gain in importance. The novel idea of getting a subscription list of voters pledged to his support is said to be starting off quite successfully; and unless Mr. George's enthusiastic supporters are working the directory dodge on him, there is a prospect of his entering the canvass with not only 30,000 but perhaps 50,000 votes pledged to him. If the new idea succeeds it may effect a great revolution in the methods of political work. Instead of the present plan of carrying conviction to the mind of the voter, by oil cloth capes and tin battle axes, the subscription canvasser with his roll of names will be the active agent of political victory, and the man who gets the most papers out and works them with the greatest effect will count more surely on victory—provided that anyway is discovered to ensure that people will vote the same way that they sign. But Mr. George has a rough road to travel before he gets his 30,000 votes into the ballot box, and until that time it is hardly necessary to speculate much on the success of his new plan.

The Canvas in Maine.

The interest in the campaign in Maine increases as the time for the election approaches. The Republican leaders, with Mr. Blaine at their head, have been making a vigorous and effective canvass, and the indications are favorable to success. The state has been one of the most uniformly reliable in the whole list of those known as Republican, and when an earnest effort has been made success has invariably followed. There are very pressing reasons why the Republicans should win this year. It would not only be a serious damper on the Presidential aspirations of Mr. Blaine should the party be defeated while being led by him in person, but it would be regarded as auguring disaster for almost any candidate that could be named in 1888.

The election takes place next Monday, the 13th, and until that time the canvass will be continued with increasing vigor. The uncertain element is the Prohibition vote. Since 1880 the Prohibitionists have had a separate ticket at every State election, but they have never polled a formidable vote. In 1884 they cast 1,157 for Governor and 2,160 for President. They are making greater exertions this year than ever before, and have St. John, Neal Dow and other stumpers at work in their interest. There is this to be taken into account—Maine has had prohibition for years, and the Republican party of prohibition so far as securing the necessary legislation was concerned. There are those who hold the Republicans responsible for the existence of the liquor traffic in the State, but, even if this were true, voters have to determine how matters are to be helped by handing the State over to the control of the Democrats. These considerations will prevent any serious drift towards the third party, and the usual Republican majority may be anticipated.

THE sea-serpent should have a care and not expose himself recklessly. His time may be short. Reports are multiplying fast that the elusive sinuous monster is on view in the Hudson River almost daily. The latest account has a decided air of plausibility. A well known business man of Albany and the captain of river steamboat both asseverate that they saw the serpent with their own eyes. These are credible witnesses and it is hard to see how they could be mistaken. The solution of the vexed question as to whether or not the sea-serpent exists may be near. Now is the time, at any rate to corral this mysterious creature, if he is there to be corralled. Simultaneously with this news from Albany come two contradictory reports of a scientific nature from Washington. The members of the Government Fish Commission are not in harmony. Prof. Gill declares that scientifically the sea-serpent is an impossibility: Professor G. Brown Goode says that the animal is not only possible, but probable, and that he has seen a man who has seen the serpent. The burden of proof rests with Professor Goode. Is it not this duty to lead an expedition to capture the monster which has chosen the Hudson for its own, and so decide a problem that has vexed the ages—as well as prove himself a better man than Professor Gill? New York Tribune.

The County Ticket.

Nothing could be more satisfactory to the Republicans of this county than the nominations made on Tuesday afternoon by the convention. The hour is too late for us to speak at length of the personnel of the ticket, but we believe it will speak for itself and recommend itself to all voters of all parties.

John G. Love is one of the ablest lawyers at the Bellefonte bar. He has labored for the Republican party for many years and will make an able representative. Guyer Mattern, of Patton township, is a young gentleman of business ability. He is conceded by all who know him to be excellently equipped for the legislature.

Capt. Geo. M. Boal, of Potter township, is widely known. He will make one of the most intelligent prothonotary's this county ever had. He was a soldier, is a good business man and every man in Centre county is his friend.

J. H Lichtenthaler, Esq., of Phillipsburg, will be a district attorney who will attend to all the business of the county with care and correctness. He is well read in the law and especially good in those requirements needed in a district attorney.

Jesse Cleaver, of Unionville, is a master of his profession as a surveyor. He has a remarkable acquaintance with the old lines and marks which designate the properties of the county. Besides, he is possessed of the highest moral character. Vote for him for county surveyor.

We are glad that the convention named Hon. James P. Coburn as its choice for congress. He has force of character, a large knowledge of the laws of the land, excellent judgment and all the parts of a statesman. The district cannot produce a better man.

Aid for the South.

Several communities in South Carolina, notably the large city of Charleston, suffered from the earthquake and are in urgent need of assistance. To rebuild their residences and business houses, the citizens are considering the propriety of asking for a loan from the Government of about $10,000,000. This impresses us as a good idea, as it will bring the people of that State into more direct relation with the government. It is also the duty of the general government to aid any portion of the country when distressed in this unusual way.

It is a commendable custom, when one portion of our land is thus so terribly stricken, for those communities which escape unhurt to send aid to the sufferers. They seldom, if ever, fail to do so until the suffering ones cry, "Enough!" We notice that Philadelphia has taken the initiatory in this work among the northern cities and already several thousand dollars have been placed at the command of Charleston.

Do not permit Bellefonte to be behind in this matter. It would show a grand feeling of liberality for the North to entirely rebuild Charleston and would make the people of the South feel more affection for the North. A strange feeling of sectional jealousy exists in the South. They have no idea of the feeling of liberality toward them which exists here. Let Bellefonte help in the work.

SENATOR WALLACE says that the Democratic state convention made a mistake in dodging the liquor question. Wallace is not alone in that opinion.

GENERAL NOTES.

The last Royal Academy dinner cost the British artists £60,000.

It cost the county of Cook $40,000 to try the Chicago "Anarchists."

"Insteps arched at reasonable figures," is a New York announcement.

The little tiger in the Central Park is being brought up on the bottle.

A single oyster opened the other day by a Fair Haven, Conn., man contained 163 pearls.

The fair plaintiff in a breach of promise suit at Marshalltown, Ia., compromised for $5.

Kansas City, Mo., is said to be the largest market in the world for straight Kentucky whiskey.

Nearly a bushel of petrified hickory nuts were found in a cave near Lexington, Ill., the other day.

An apple tree is blooming as thickly as it did in spring on the grounds of Mark W. Pierce, at Bartlett, N. Y.

Near Monroe, Ga., a blacksnake seven and a half feet long, with a foot and a half of its tail nearly white, was recently killed.

Mr. Goodall, of Sharon, Me., has one room at his summer residence, Old Orchard, entirely devoted to a rare collection of toys.

Natural gas was reached in Clinton, Ill., at a distance of 27 feet. A light was applied to the gas and several persons were burned.

Of 9,000 miles of disputed boundary the Afghan Commission has conceded 7,000 to Russia and 2,000 to the Ameer of Afghanistan.

Dr. Frisch, of the Vienna Polyclinic after experimenting for three months, reports against the Pasteur method in hydrophobia cases.

Secretary Whitney is charged with wearing a $2 coat and trousers almost transparent, while at work in the Naval Office in the summer.

A whale 160 feet long is endeavoring to rival the sea serpent on the Atlantic coast, which may account for the latter taking to the Hudson.

A mill at Harlan, Mich., was shut down because a 50-pound catfish got into the race and closed the gates, thus stopping the water supply.

There are a number of Mormon missionaries in Turkey, but they are not making many converts. The Mormons do better in Christian lands.

Minnie Wilson, a rosy-cheeked maiden of 15, drives the stage between Millnor and Hamline, in Dakato. The route is extremely popular, as might be expected.

Shenandoah, Pa., boasts that there resides in that vicinity at present a genuine man fish—that is, he was at one time as genuine as Barnum could make him.

Three young tiger kittens made their appearance in the New York museum the other day, but two of them died soon after birth. The third is reported doing well.

The United States ship James sailed from the Naval Academy, Annapolis, last week. Forty out of seventy applicants for naval cadetship failed on English studies.

The recent death of John Templeton, who was born in 1802, suggests to an English correspondent, who recalls a number of illustrations, that "tenors live to a good old age."

Hirrison Millard, composer of a great deal of church music, and of many songs that are or were popular, was among the clerks lately dropped from the New York custom house roll.

Bowling parties are a leading diversion for the young people at Catskill hotels. They even play ten pins at night by the aid of oil lamps, for which bats have a decided partiality.

The onion crop in Middletown, N. Y., which has been attacked by the pest which appeared last year (the onion weevil) will not be over 200,000 bushels. It usually yields 500,000 bushels.

Dan Madden, of Utica, Illinois, laid a lighted lamp-wick on a whiskey barrel in his liquor saloon. The barrel exploded and the saloon was destroyed. The careless proprietor was badly burned.

The San Francisco papers predict that San Francisco will capture the whole trade of Southern Oregon as soon as the connection between the California and Oregon and Oregon and California roads is made.

A spring on Federal street, Baltimore, from which wayfarers love to drink, has been discovered to have its source in a cemetery and an analysis reveals the fact that the gases from the decomposing bodies are soluble in the water.

Mr. Milligan and wife, of Princeton, Ill., while riding near that city, saw a mirage which presented to view a broad river dotted with islands. This river appeared to occupy the space where Princeton is, and to stretch further northward.

Herr Schmidt, an accomplished German horticulturist, who was some time ago sent to East Africa to introduce the cultivation of European kitchen garden vegetables and corn, reported that after repeated trials the experiment has completely failed.

A most astonishing phenomenon of the Japanese earthquake was the splitting of the Rapandayang mountain. In a flash of time it was split into seven parts. Where the lone mountain had stood loomed up seven peaks each some 7,000 feet high.

For five years Albert Wampler, a young man residing near Anderson, Ind., has been unable to walk without the use of crutches. On last Tuesday morning, during a season of prayer directed specially for him, he arose, laid down his crutches and walked at the same time. Wampler claims that all pain immediately left him, and now feels perfectly well.

Poetry.

DAISIES ON THE FARM.

She painted them on canvass
With a rapt, artistic air,
She wore them in her bodice,
And in her raven hair.
She thought farm life idyllic,
And said its greatest charm
Was lent it by the daisies,
The daisies on the farm.

"Do you not love the daisies?"
To the farmer's son she saith,
But all the praise he uttered
Was underneath his breath.
It sounded energetic,
But she felt a vague alarm
That he did not love the daisies,
The daisies on the farm.

She read to him a poem,
A pastoral complete;
He seemed unsympathetic,
Though her voice was very sweet.
With some repressed emotion
His face grew dark and warm
For its burden was the daisies,
The daisies on the farm.

Soon the charming summer boarder
To her city home returned,
For a soul of higher longing
Her æsthetic nature yearned.
And the farmer's son, undaunted,
With his scythe upon his arm,
Went to battle with the daisies,
The daisies on the farm.

PICKLE FRAUDS.

Umbrella, novelette and shawl,
He carried one, and carried all,
And gave the lady his free hand
To help her down upon the sand.

The huge umbrella lent its shade
To grateful man and gracious maid;
With all the world quite close at hand,
They felt alone upon the sand.

Some flimsiest web that fiction weaves
She read; he idly turned the leaves,
And so it happened that their hands
Touched now and then upon the sands.

Her shawl was fluttered by the breeze,
And both essayed the folds to seize
And so it happened that their hands
Met once again upon the sands.

She did not mean it to be so,
But he forgot to let hers go;
And she forgot to claim her hand,
And thus they sat upon the sand.

The book was closed, the shawl blew wide,
And as they sat there side by side
They both agreed to fast lock hands
And walk together o'er life's sands.

Some weeks passed by, and both again
Were seated by the sighing main;
Alas! he held another's hands,
Another hers, upon the sands.

OMENS.

The cornsilk tassels on the ride
Are bronzing in the sun;
The elderberries by the bridge,
And all along the run,

Grow purple through the golden days;
Barberries by the wall
Grow crimson in the silver haze
That ushers in the fall.

Old Ocean dreams in slumbers deep
Of wintry storms to come,
In far-off mountain cavern sleep
The winds; the brooks are dumb.

The partridge, in lone country lanes,
Whirls low a speckled wing;
Silence through all the woodland reigns,
The birds forget to sing.

From yellow cornfields slowly pass
The crows, with clanging cry;
All day upon the orchard grass
Ripe apples fall. A sigh

Escapes the earth at thought of death,
For summer's life so brief,
And fluttering on that sigh's faint breath,
Falls down the first red leaf.

—All the flirting and deceiving,
Captivating, make-believing,
With its temporary sweetness, tones the pleasure of a day,
And a thrilling memory lingers
Of the touch of slender fingers,
Stolen sweetness, smiles and blushes that have vanished all away.

But perhaps you know the pleasure
Of possession in your measure,
And a year of adaptation has remodelled your desire;
When you modify the rapture
Of your hymeneal capture,
As you shiver in attempting to construct the kitchen fire.

Our Story Teller.

HOW IT HAPPENED.

Effie Ford, with tear-stained face, sat amid a pile of formidable documents. She was in deep mourning. Only one week before she had laid away the remains of her only surviving relative in the shadow of the cross-crowned church over the hill. It was a dismal prospect for a girl of 17, and one who was absolutely ignorant of business. The Fords had always lived in luxury. But on his death-bed Mr. Ford called Effie to him; his articulation was imperfect, but she caught: "Bad investments, mortgage bonds. Poor! Poor!" * * Barker will tell you." A few gasps and it was over.

All day she had tried to bring order out of chaos. At last, with a sigh, she tossed the little fringes from her forehead, as if even their light weight were an oppression.

"It is useless," she murmured, "I can make nothing of anything." Then suddenly she remembered, "'Barker will tell you.'" The memory came with a sigh of relief.

A servant answered the bell.

"Take this to Mr. Barker," she ordered, "and wait an answer."

It came in less than an hour.

"Mr. Barker will wait upon Miss Ford at 2." She glanced at the clock. It lacked five minutes of that hour.

Barker was a lawyer in the same town. She had always known him, and she remembered that he had been with her father frequently before she went to school for the last time.

As he entered Effie started. She had thought of him as rather elderly, but the man who stood before her was extremely handsome, and perhaps double her 17 years.

"You are kind, Mr. Barker, to respond so promptly. I did not know what to do, to whom to turn. I can make nothing of papa's papers," she sighed wearily.

"Of course. What can you know about law?" and together they turned to the perplexing pile.

Barker ran his eye over paper after paper, and a startled look came into his eyes, keen lawyer's though they were.

"Are these all?" he asked.

"I believe so. Papa kept his papers in that secretary; and, Mr. Barker, I know from what he said that there were losses—that I shall not be very well off. I do not mind," she added quickly, "other people are poor, why not I?"

"Some losses! Not as well off as she had been!" He regarded her queerly. Poor child! Did she know that house, lands, even the costly furniture was covered with mortgages? No, and he determined she never should know. He had no living relatives, and why should he not do for this helpless girl what he would have liked some one to do for sister or wife of his?

"There will be something left after the debts are paid, will there not?"

The pretty pathetic eyes looked squarely into his. He could not answer this child-woman with evasion. "If you will trust to me, Miss Ford, I will do my best. Your father trusted me on several occasions," (he did not add, if that father had been guided by his judgment. his daughter would not now be penniless) "and I am confident I know more of the business than anyone else." He waited her answer.

"Oh, yes, and thank you, Mr. Barker." With a childish, trustful motion, she slipped her hand in his. Barker's experience with women was bounded by aggressive little widows, and soul-terrifying Sallie Brasses, and there was a queer little flutter in his manner as he bid her good-night.

Mr. Ford's affairs were in a hopeless tangle. Ruin was inevitable. Such was Barker's verdict, after a re-perusal of the Ford papers. "Poor little thing!" he whispered to himself; "she shall never know if I can help it."

Out of those deeds and mortgages seemed to start a vision of a home Eden, where certain eyes looked into his with bewildering love. Bah! What have sentimental love dreams in common with an austere lawyer's office.

* * * * *

A puzzled face appeared at the office of Barker & Hawkins one day, not long after.

"I am sorry to worry you, but see here?" Effie produced a slip of paper which she held toward him. It stated the existence of a note, covering $10,000, principal and interest, held by one Isaacs & Tobias, brokers in a neighboring city.

"When did you receive this?" He avoiding looking at the captivating face as much as possible.

"To-day; and, Mr. Barker, it must be paid. The $10,000 you saved for me will just cover it. Will you do it for me?"

"Yes, Miss Ford. It is fortunate, however, that I changed the investment. By the new arrangement it has doubled. You can pay this bill and retain the same amount."

"I can? How nice! I thought I would have to go out as a nurse-maid or—something. Mr. Barker, when is your client coming who owns the house? I feel as if I were an intruder, somehow."

"You are not. The favor is to him. I have his word for it."

She still lingered. "Mr. Barker, you have been so kind and good. I wish I could do something for you. If I can ever will you let me?"

"Yes, Miss Ford."

Effie left the office with a queer dissatisfied feeling at her heart. Down the drowsing street, filled with lazy shadows, she strolled. As she turned the corner she collided with a rakish-looking youth. He recovered himself with an apology. There was such a frank look in his bright, blue eyes that Effie took to him at once He accompanied her as far as the gate, opened it, and, with a bow, turned toward the open plaza. "What a very nice, accommodating boy," was Effie's mental comment.

She met the "very nice boy" frequently after this. He was 18 and quite idle. He obtained a conventional introduction. Bert Gwynne was his name—and he constituted himself Effie's veritable double. On the street, at church, Mr. Bert Gwynne was always present, and he assumed the attitude with such an of-course-it-is-agreeable-to you air that Effie became incensed and determined to give him a piece of her mind.

One day he commenced to poke fun at "Old Gabe Barker." Then the dynamite exploded.

"He is not old," she flashed.

"Forty if he is an hour," insisted the provoking.

"I say he is not," declared the frank little lady. "Anyhow, he is not a presuming boy;" great acrimony in the last words.

"He'll make you marry him after a while; now you see. He bought up every one of those notes," cried the badly conducted.

"What notes? Tell me?" Effie was aflame.

"Your father's. Who do you suppose paid the debts? Why, Gabe Barker out of his own pocket. This very house is his," continued he.

"You are a wicked person, and I don't believe one word you say," burst out Effie.

"It isn't such a mighty thing after all. I'd do ever so much more, Effie, if you'd let me. But you called me presuming, and it made me angry."

"So you are. I hate you, and I'm going this minute to Mr. Barker." She flung on her hat.

"I wouldn't. Let it alone. He's well able to do it if he wishes." Bert thought he had never seen Effie so desirable, as with that angry pout and the infinite air of scorn with which she regarded him.

* * * *

"Mr. Barker is it so? Tell me. I will know!" with tear-flushed face she raided in on him. "They say that papa died—insolvent, and—you bought up his no—otes, and tell me!" she implored impassionately.

"Effie, don't! you will be ill. Who told you such cruel things?" He shuffled his apers in agitation.

"Bert Gwynne; he says it is the talk of the place, and——"

Heavens! What had she almost said: He'll make you marry him after a while. He marry her! such an insignificant nobody.

"Effie, listen; I am not going to deny what I have done."

"Then you did! oh!" She went down by the stiff old client's chair in a heap and hid her face in her hands.

"Child, what could I do? The creditors threatened. There was nothing to pay them, and you looked so little and helpless. Besides, it is only discharging an old obligation. Your father was very kind to me when I was a poor lad. Effie, don't be angry."

Sob, sob from the rounds of the chair.

"Is the house yours, too?"

"By heavens, Effie, if you ask me anything more I'll deny everything." desperately.

"Is it, I say?" tempestuously.

"Yes."

Gabriel Barker was as abashed as if he had been confronted with selling illegal whisky.

"Do you hold those notes?"

"Confound that meddlesome Gwynne boy. I'll thrash him to-morrow if I live. Yes, Effie, but they are yours. I have left them to you in my will. Here they are," laying a bundle in her lap.

"Take them away. I will not have them," she said, excitedly. "Unless—Mr. Barker—you tell me how—I—can—pay—you."

"Will you if I tell you, Effie?"

He opened his arms and she crept close to his heart, whispering:

"Yes, Gabriel."

The Man Who Never Forgot a Face

The passenger who was never known to forget a face sat down beside freckled young man with a sandy mustache.

"Seems to me I have seen you before," said the never-forget you passenger.

"Possibly," replied the freckle young man, "my mane is Smith of Jonesville, Mich."

"What! Smith, of Jonesville."

"Yes, John Smith, of Jonesville. Did you ever live in Jonesville?"

"Should say I did. Lived there ten years. Knew I had seen you somewhere before. I never forget a face. I knew you as soon as I sot eyes upon you. Never forgot a face in my life."

"How long since you left that old town?"

"Let me see; it was twenty-seven years last June. That's a long time, ain't it? Hain't been back there since, but your face is as fresh in my mind as if it were only yesterday."

"Now that is odd," said the frecked young man; "you haven't been in Jonesville for twenty-seven years. I haven't been out of it for twenty-seven years, and I am just twenty-seven years old. I must have been born the year you left our town. Do you still think you remember me?"

"Remember your, lad? Why I knew you the second I saw you. I was your godfather at your christening, and do you think I would forget a face that was impressed on my mind in so solemn a ceremony as that? No, siree. I never forgot a face, young man, never."

Didn't See the Visa Versa.

"Let me see some of your black kid gloves," said Mrs. Snagg to a clerk at the Fifth ave. store.

"These are not the latest style, are they?" she asked, when the gloves were produced.

"Yes, madam," said the clerk. "We have had them in stock only two days."

"I didn't think they were, because the fashion paper says that black kids have tan stitches, and vice versa. I see the tan stitches, but not the vice versa."

The clerk explained that vice versa was French for seven buttons, and Mrs. Snaggs bought the gloves.

A Boston lawyer recently met his match in a witness who was giving evidence about an old lady's loss of mind. Lawyer—Did she look as I am looking at you now, for instance? Witness—Well, yes; quite vacant like!

Potatoes in Politics.

On February 15th, 1886, Col. Wm. Morrison, Chairman of Committee of Ways and Means, introduced "a bill to reduce Tariff taxes," into the House of Representatives, and as that bill placed corn, oats, hay and potatoes on the free list, we have taken the trouble to look up the statistics relating to these products of the farm, and with the result: Hay imported during the year 1884, was 118,753 tons; in 1885 it was 160,910 tons; the duty on hay is two dollars per ton.

The duty on corn and oats is ten cents per bushel, and while the importation of corn is only about 5,000 bushel per annum, the quantity of oats imported was 57,173 bushels and 1,193,902 pounds of oat meal for the year 1884 and 34,795 bushels of oats and 1,079,143 pounds of oat meal for 1885; and the quantity of potatoes imported, under a duty of fifteen cents per bushel, was 14,406,635 bushels for the five years ended June 30, 1885, or an annual average of 2,881,327 bushels.

The average value of potatoes per bushel in the United States is about 45 cents, and if Col. Morrison succeeds in placing them on the free list it would reduce their value just 15 cents per bushels, and in order to compete with Canadian farmers, the agriculturists of this country would have to greatly reduce the price of their hay, corn, oats and potatoes, and to grow them thus cheaply, farm laborers' wages would have to be reduced to the Canadian standard

The pending motion now is: Shall the Morrison Free Trade bill pass the House in December next? The yeas and nays will be taken on this question on Tuesday, November 2nd, 1886, at the election polls. Those in favor of low wages will vote the Democratic ticket.

Landseer's Skill.

Clara Erskine Clement, in St. Nicholas.

Landseer had an extreme fondness for studying and making pictures of lions, and from the time when, as a boy, he dissected one, he tried to obtain the body of every lion that died in London. Dickens was in the habit of relating that on one occasion, when he and others were dining with the artist, a servant entered and asked, "Did you order a lion, sir?" as if it was the most natural thing in the world. The guests feared that a living lion was about to enter, but it turned out to be the body of the dead "Nero," of the Zoological Gardens, which had been sent as a gift to Sir Edwin.

His skill in drawing was marvelous, and was once shown in a rare way at a large evening party. Facility in drawing had been the theme of conversation, when a lady declared that no one had yet drawn two objects at the same moment. Landseer would not allow that this should be done, and immediately took two pencils and drew a horse's head with one hand, and at the same time a stag's head with the other hand. He painted with great rapidity; he once sent to the exhibition a picture of rabbits painted in three-quarters of an hour. Mr. Wells relates that at one time when Landseer was visiting him, he left the house for church just as his butler paced a fresh canvas on the easel before the painter; on his return, three hours later, Landseer had completed a life-sized picture of a fallow-deer, and so well was it done that neither he nor the artist could see that it required retouching.

Sad Stories from Berlin.

Berlin Letter to New York Sun.

Out of a population of 1,200,000 in Berlin more than 150,000 are receiving public charity. Many of the workingmen here openly favor community of wives. Divorces have increased to 15 per cent of the marriages solemnized. The attendance at the churches has decreased to 2 per cent of the adult population, and of 48,000 funerals last year nearly 36,000 were performed without any religious ceremonies whatever.

Women flock by thousands to the city to obtain employment, and, failing to get what they want, large numbers fall and are lost. This evil has become so great that strenuous efforts are being made to avoid it. The law of consent has already been raised in a similar way as it was done in New York and in England. By such legislative enactment some sort of protection is extended to girls up to the age of 18. Lodging houses and benevolent institutions have been established to aid working women, and a society of ladies has been formed charged with protecting, sustaining and counselling women up to the age of 35.

How Coral Islands Grow.

People used to think that coral islands were built from the bottom of the sea; but the tiny architects which construct them, the polyps, cannot live at any great depth in the water, therefore they support their workmanship upon some rock beneath. Neither can these little builders live out of the water, but they gradually bring the frame work of the island to the surface of the water, and the work of completion is brought about in another way, which Captain Chemm, of the Royal Navy, describes as follows:

"First the foundations are built up until it makes a break or ripple on the surface. Something is then drifted and entangled on it—maybe a log of wood, a dead tree, a mass of weeds. Then birds bring their food of fishes, and leave the bones there. Sand gravel and broken shells accumulate around it, and it begins to appear above water.

"Seeds drifting on the ocean are next arrested in their progress. Dead wood, decayed leaves, and fishbones, form a sod. The seed, generally the mangrove, germinates, and rapidly, too, with the heat and rain of the tropics. This becomes a bush, then a tree. Its roots grasp the surrounding soil, and it becomes the nucleus of a mangrove island, waiting for some passing discoverer to name it.

"I have watched with real interest the progress of these islets from year to year—first the ripple, then the collection of leaves, sand, and shells, then the first shoot of the mangrove, then the sea shells, the hermit crab, and the surface ocean shell—all soon to become a coral island."

Perhaps the Earthquake Caused It.

At Chicago August 31, a dispatch was received at the City Hall from the mayor of Belleplain, Iowa, which states that an artesian well four inches in diameter, burst when a depth of 180 feet had been reached in boring, and instantly a volume of water was forced into the air to a distance of several hundred feet. This gradually increased in size and volume until a stream of water fully sixteen inches in diameter was formed, and the upward force of the stream is equal to the power of powder or dynamite. The water in huge volumes is spouting high in the air and the supply seems inexhaustible. Two gigantic rivers have been formed, which are running through the town at the rate of twelve miles an hour and carrying everything before them.

Houses and lives are threatened by this peculiar freak of nature and the citizens are appalled at their impending danger, which at present they are powerless to overcome. Fifteen car loads of stone were emptied into the well, but these, too, were hurled into the air. No abatement in the flow of water is perceptible, and the rushing rivers formed by it are washing the channels they had made deeper and wider, while the basin formed by this immense volume of water was spreading over low lands in the vicinity. In response to a request of the mayor of Belleplain, a well-known engineer started for the place to-night to endeavor to stop the flow of the water.

Education of Mohammedans.

The Kossid-I-Mumbai, which is the only paper published in Bombay for the education of Mohammedans, pronounces the following opinion with regard to the education of the females of the Mohammedan community: "Our Islamics have, in emulation of their Parsee brethren, lately opened a girl's school. We wish them joy of it. Let us, however, ask them a few questions. Will the educated Mohammedan girl accept as husband a lucifer-match seller, or sherbet walla, or a dealer in mangoes? It is a well known fact that Mussulman boys are very backward in matters of education. They spend their pocket-money in Kawa Khanas, native theatres, and liquor-shops. Educate them first before preparing educated wives for them. Girls must be educated according to their means and station in life. A weaver's educated daughter will not accept an illiterate weaver for a husband. A weaver's daughter, again, will find no welcome in a rich man's house. A little knowledge will be her ruin. Let the weaver's girl have the benefit of a superior training in the art of weaving."

The Smallest Railway Car.

"What is the smallest car in use in railroading?" asked the Snake Editor.

"Is that a conundrum?" asked the Horse Editor.

"Yes."

"Then I give it up."

"The refrigerator car."

"I don't see how that is."

"Don't you? It is because it is animalcular."

It took the Horse Editor two hours to grasp the connection between animalcular and animal cooler, and he has not quite recovered yet.

She Had Him.

Merchant Traveller.

"My dear, it seems to me that you are much more extravagant in dressing than there is any necessity for," said the fond husband. "Now, why couldn't you have your garments a little plainer? The trimming on your last dress ran the bill up dreadfully."

"That's always the way," was the plaintively spoken reply; "whenever I get a new dress you scold about the trimming. I'm sure I don't treat you that way."

"Certainly not, my dear; there is no occasion for it."

"Yes there is. You go and get your whiskers trimmed just as much you choose, and I don't say a word. So there, now."

All Sorts.

The poet that spares the golden-rod just now spoils the child of his fancy.

No matter how much a man hates a creditor he invariably asks him to call again.

"Well, I'll be hanged!" exclaimed the astonished Chicago Anarchist when he heard the verdict.

It is wrong to speak of a "respectable" embezzler as a "good man gone wrong." He is a bad man found out.

A new game of cards is called "matrimony." If the man wins he takes the girl; if the girl wins she takes the man.

When a man starts out to lecture he puts on a dress suit. A woman before starting to lecture puts on a night gown.

It must gall the mean rich man terribly sometimes to think that he has to pay a cent a piece for postal cards by the thousand.

The Italians who come to this country must have a strong attachment for their native land. They bring so much of it with them.

A young man was recently asked to go duck hunting and refused, giving as a reason that the aquatic birds were too personal in their remarks.

De Wiggs—"Let's go down to the beach and take a bath in the surf." De Dizgs—"No, thanks." "Why not?" "Been in to-day already—had a surfeit, in fact."

"Fine complexion Mrs. H. has got," said Brown to his friend Bristles, the artist. "I know it," replied Bristles, "she and I buy our colors at the same shop."

The man who gets hold of a piece of news and won't give it up to a reporter is probably restrained by feelings of professional jealousy. He is an item miser himself.

"Mamma," said Bobby, "I have eaten my cake all up, and Charles hasn't touched his yet. Won't you make him share with me so as to teach him to be generous?"

Louisa M. Alcott has written a sequel to "Little Men." We know not what its title is to be, but it is universally agreed that large women are the natural complement of little men.

Little Charlie—"Papa, will you buy me a drum?" Fond father—"Ah, but, my boy, you will disturb me very much if I do." Charlie—"Oh, no, papa, I won't drum except when you're asleep."

Stranger. I left my umbrella here last night. Where is it? Shopkeeper—I don't know. 'Why you said I could leave it here." "Yes, but I didn't say you would find it here when you came back."

Propounding to a boy seven years old the old rid le, "Round the house and 'round the house, and peeps in the keyhole," he gave as his immediate solution, "A woman—isn't that it?"

Proprietor—"So you're the young fellow that robs my orchard?" Innocence—"I ain't been a-robbin no one." Proprietor "What makes your pockets bulge out?" Innocence—"It's the way the pants is cut."

A young man who has a good deal of spare time on his hands wishes to learn of something that will keep him occupied. We can think of two things right off—getting married and tipping over a beehive.

"Hello, Scragg, I thought you were in California." "So I was, but the climate was too warm for my business." "What were you doing?" "Compounding.' 'Compounding what?' "Felonies."

He—"But I'm afraid that I'm wearying you. Excuse me for mentioning it, but I think I saw you indulge in a suppressed yawn twice." She—"Oh, don't go, I beg. Your company is so healthful." He—"So healthful?" She—"Yes; Mrs. Stratton advises all girls in society to sleep, and do you know, your conversation is exceedingly quieting. Indeed, I was more than half asleep when you started to go. Pray sit down; in another five minutes I am sure I shall be in the land of dreams." But he didn't stop. He happened to think of an important engagement that could not be neglected.

TIRED OUT!

At this season nearly every one needs to use some sort of tonic. IRON enters into almost every physician's prescription for those who need building up.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS

Trade Mark. QUALITY P PURITY NOT QUANTITY. On Every Bottle.

—THE BEST TONIC

For Weakness, Lassitude, Lack of Energy, etc., it HAS NO EQUAL, and is the only Iron medicine that is not injurious. It Enriches the Blood, Invigorates the System, Restores Appetite, Aids Digestion. It does not blacken or injure the teeth, cause headache or produce constipation—other Iron medicines do.

DR. G. H. BINKLEY, a leading physician of Springfield, Ohio, says:

"Brown's Iron Bitters is a thoroughly good medicine. I use it in my practice, and find its action excels all other forms of iron. In weakness, or a low condition of the system, Brown's Iron Bitters is usually a positive necessity. It is all that is claimed for it."

DR. W. N. WATERS, 1219 Thirty-second Street, Georgetown, D. C., says: "Brown's Iron Bitters is the Tonic of the age. Nothing better. It creates appetite, gives strength and improves digestion."

Genuine has above Trade Mark and crossed red lines on wrapper. Take no other. Made only by BROWN CHEMICAL CO., BALTIMORE, MD.

How Billy Jones got Mr. and Mrs. Rawdon to Hazard Castle.

Rawdon called for a lantern, but was told that that alone would be but of little use to him, that he must have a guide, and that he had better go to Billy Jones, who lived near by, and who, with his own lantern, would act as pilot. Rawdon went for the house, groping for it in the darkness, followed by Mrs. Rawdon, who got to the door first, pushed it open, and loudly called, "Billy Jones! Oh, where is Billy Jones?"

Billy's wife, still up and stirring, astonished at such an apparition and the vehemence of her visitor, replied as soon as she could catch her breath:

"He's abed, asleep in that room."

"Call him! Oh, call him! and tell him to get up and get his lantern." And, not waiting for this to be done, she pushed into the room shouting, "Billy Jones! Billy Jones, get up and pilot us to the Castle."

Billy, roused suddenly, was himself in a fog, and it was some time before he could take in the situation. Mrs. Rawdon in the meantime expostulating with him for not at once jumping out of bed.

At last he said: "I will, mum, if you will quit the room."

"No, no," was the troubled reply; "I am afraid you'll slip off. Get up and I'll turn my back while you put on your clothes."

At last they started, Billy (who had on his old tarpaulin, his oilcloth overalls, and great clumping boots) swinging his lantern and searching for the path which was none too well defined even in daytime. Mrs. Rawdon kept close to Billy and his lantern. The way seemed longer than when they came down, and at last they found they had lost the path, had passed the Castle and would have to retrace their steps.

When housed once more, Mrs. Rawdon went at once to her room, and Rawdon arranged that, as the night was bad and it was already late, Billy should remain, sleep on a sofa, call him at three o'clock, and they would go fishing together; Billy during the night to sample some cigars and whiskey left with him for that purpose.

Then Rawdon retired, and as he locked and tried the chamber door, he said in a subdued voice, "My dear, do you know that we are harboring a reformed pirate?"

"A what! a pirate!"

"Sh! Don't make any noise, don't speak above a whisper—a reformed pirate."

"A pirate! Oh, my God!" she exclaimed.

"My children—all of us—under the same roof with a pirate! Turn him out! Oh, why don't you run down stairs and get rid of him! But, no, you shall not open that door again to-night," and she rushed out the bureau and crowded it against the door.

"Don't, my dear," exclaimed Rawdon. "Calm yourself. He's no longer a pirate; he's reformed—a reformed pirate, my dear, and is now perfectly harmless."

But the barricading went on; candles were lighted and placed on every projecting edge and shelf, so long as there were any in the box, while every sound from below was caught by a watchful ear. So the night passed, when, at three o'clock, it was evident that something was going on in the house—the moving of chairs and table, and then the clumping of Billy's heavy boots coming up the stairs, told that he was stirring, was probably on the rampage.

"Oh, Thomas! the pirate! the pirate! he's coming, and in a moment will be at out door."

"Nonsense," cried Mr. Rawdon, trying to pacify her, "calm yourself. He's no longer a pirate; he's harmless now, for he's reformed, and, besides, he's coming for me to go a fishing."

A Musical Beast.

A minister named M. C——, who has since passed into "innocuous desuetude" by falling from grace, had a circuit in Southern Indiana. The horse he rode was a spirited animal, and would not let a blacksmith shoe him.

The preacher was a great revivalist and singer of revival songs—noted for his "power of song," in fact.

A smith in the county seat, the centre of the circuit, learning the preacher's horse would not be shod, meeting the divine once, said:

"If you'll bring that horse to my shop to-morrow and follow my instructions I'll shoe him all round, and it won't cost you a cent."

Accordingly the preacher was on time at the smith's shop with his refractory steed, and after the animal had been divested of saddle, blankets and all but the bridle the smith said:

"Now, hold your horse by the rein close to the bridle bit and sing one of your liveliest camp-meeting songs, and when that is ended strike up another, and keep on singing until I finish shoeing the horse."

The preacher obeyed, and to the astonishment of all the animal was passive until the work was completed.

As the blacksmith clinched the last nail he dropped the animal's foot, exclaiming:

"There, I knew you could sing religion into that horse."

FACTS vs. PREJUDICE

Prejudice is hard to combat. It cannot be overcome in a day. More than likely it wasn't formed hastily. Indeed it may have been gradually strengthening its hold for years. For instance, some folks believe Rheumatism cannot be cured. Their fathers believed so before them. So did their grandfathers.

Now, RHEUMATISM CAN BE CURED, notwithstanding this prejudice, but the trouble is to make people think so. The only way we know to meet popular unbelief is to state the PLAIN FACTS, and then present the POSITIVE PROOFS that they are facts. It is a fact that the RUSSIAN RHEUMATISM CURE not only relieves but banishes Rheumatic Pain. There is positive proof of it too. It comes from those who have suffered untold agony with Rheumatism and have been completely cured by this remedy. All who have tried it have had this experience. Some of them permit us to print their testimony. It makes quite a little book, which we send free to any who are interested enough to ask for it.

A complete Russian Rheumatism Cure, costs $2.50. If mailed, 10c. additional. If registered, 10c. more. You'll never need but one, so the price isn't high. Who wouldn't give $2.50 to get rid of Rheumatism?

As yet it cannot be found at the stores, but can be had only by enclosing the amount as above, and addressing the American Proprietors,

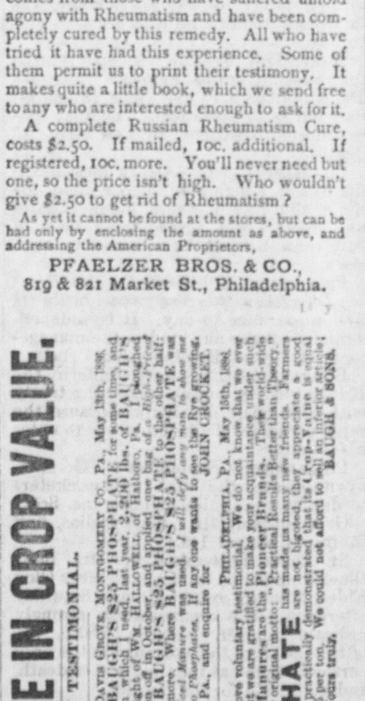
VOLUNTARY TESTIMONIAL.



Messrs. BAUGH & SONS, Philadelphia.

Dear Sirs:—This is to certify that I have been using BAUGH'S $25 PHOSPHATE for some time, and it does well for me. I have nine acres of ground on which I used, last year, 2,000 lbs. of BAUGH'S $25 PHOSPHATE for Wheat, Grass, etc., bought of W. HALLOWELL, of Hatboro, Pa. I bought about half an acre of ground after the corn was taken off in October, and applied one bag of the Bone Phosphate at this time. May 12th, the Rye is four feet high. Where the Bone Phosphate was applied, the Rye is thicker than where the High Priced Manures were used. I will defy any man to show me where the $13.00 per ton difference is between the two Phosphates. If any one wants to see the Rye growing, come to HOSHEIM TOWNSHIP, MONTGOMERY CO., PA., and enquire for

Messrs. BAUGH & SONS, Philadelphia.

Dear Sirs:—We do not know that we ever met or had any previous correspondence with you, but we are glad to make your acquaintance under such favorable circumstances. Baugh's Raw Bone Manures are the Pioneer Brands. Their world-wide reputation has been gained by strict adherence to our original motto: Practical Results Better than Theory. Where the Raw Bone Manures are not used, we appreciate your kindness in sending us the above voluntary testimonial.

Prince Alexander Insulted.

LONDON, September 3.—The Daily News says: Prince Alexander has been abandoned and isolated by agreement of the three empires. Nothing could exceed the humility of the letter to the czar, which is only equaled in degree by the brutality of the czar's answer. It is rumored that Prince Alexander's father wants to throw up his honorary commission in a Russian regiment and that the German and Austrian governments are trying to dissuade him from doing so, as such a course would be great offense to the czar.

An attempt was made to wreck the train conveying Prince Alexander to Sofia. When near Philippopolis the engineer discovered an obstruction on the track and brought the train to a standstill. On investigation it was found that five sleepers had been placed upon the track. Prince Alexander, when informed of the attempt upon his life, showed no sign of fear, maintaining a calm demeanor. A conflict between the revolutionists and the followers of Prince Alexander is feared at Sofia.

SOFIA, September 3.—The revolutionary regiments here have surrendered unconditionally to Prince Alexander and applied to him for clemency. Bulgaria is now tranquil. Prince Alexander, when he reached Bucharist on his journey to Sofia, telegraphed to the sultan assurance of homage and devotion.

Blue Mud from a Volcano.

COLUMBIA, S. C., September 3.—Advices from Summerville state that the town of Walterboro, twenty-five miles distant, was severely shaken up by frequent earthquake shocks yesterday. The damage was slight, but the inhabitants fled in terror to the country. Information comes from Colleton county that the rumbling noises and gentle oscillations of the earth have not ceased and the inhabitants fear renewed disasters. A party of colored men who arrived at Summerville yesterday reported a genuine volcano, fifteen miles distant. They declare that it emits hot blue mud to a height of twenty feet, which rushes down the hillside in boiling torrents and that lurid flames issue through the crevices in the earth. They say a sulphurous odor impregnates the air and a dizziness comes over every one who breathes it.

The Picnic Ended.

HARRISBURG, Pa., September 3.—The Grangers' picnic, the largest affair of the kind ever held in this section, came to an end this evening. The crowd to-day numbered several thousand, but was not nearly so large as yesterday. The speakers were General Osborn, republican candidate for congressman-at-large, his opponent, Maxwell Stevenson, Lieutenant Governor Black, Colonel Searle of Susquehanna county, Colonel Norris and others. The sale of machinery has run into thousands of thousands of dollars.

Want a Uniform Scale.

PITTSBURG, Pa., September 3.—There is trouble threatened among the Baltimore and Ohio miners. The difficulty is that there is no uniformity in the wages paid, each operator fixing a scale for himself. Secret meetings are in progress to-day and arrangements are being made for a mass convention. They will probably insist on the Columbus scale.

Samuel J. Randall Seriously Ill.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 3.—Congressman Samuel J. Randall is lying quite seriously ill at his country residence near Paoli. He is suffering from an attack of dysentery, together with his old ailment, gout. None but members of his family are permitted to see him and his physician says that, while his condition is not absolutely critical, it is nevertheless serious.

Yellow Fever.

MOBILE, September 1.—Health Officer Scales and President Holt, of the Louisiana board of health, have to-night certified that the sum of evidence favors yellow fever as causing two deaths in Biloxi, Miss., on Sunday and that there were eight cases there now. The Mobile authorities have declared a quarantine.

Briefs.

SAN FRANCISCO, September 3.—The Democratic state convention completed its ticket to-day. Washington Bartlett, mayor of San Francisco, was nominated for governor and M. F. Tarpey for lieutenant governor.

MEMPHIS, September 3.—James Simpson and Patterson Bell, two negroes, were hanged to-day at Marion, Crittenden county, Arkansas. They both declared their innocence, although they had previously confessed.

PHILADELPHIA, September 3.—The second day's play resulted in a victory for the Belmont cricketers over the West India team by one inning and 32 runs.

PITTSBURG, Pa., September 3.—At Exposition part Mohawk Gift won the 2.25 race. Best time 2.26. The winning race was won by Elexor and Wamba.

TITUSVILLE, Pa, September 3.—P. M. Betts, well known in Grand Army and Knights of Honor circles in Pennsylvania, died to-day.

Defeated by Bandits.

NEW LAREDO, Mex., Sept. 6.—The greatest excitement has prevailed here since the arrival last night of the wounded soldiers who had taken part in the fight between government troops and the revolutionists under command of the notorious "El Coyote." The fight took place at sunrise. The government troops were worsted, having two killed and three wounded, besides several horses shot. An attack by the forces of "El Coyote" is momentarily expected here and volunteer forces are being organized for the protection of the city.

The Earthquake City.

CHARLESTON, S. C., September 4—11 p. m.—This city was shaken again to-night. It was at 9.30 o'clock. Though a person might suppose our citizens would become accustomed to this sort of thing, it is evident they have not yet learned to like it. The shock was nothing like as severe as it was last night. It more than met all requirements, however, and startled the shaken-up people.

None but the whites appear as yet to know how to take these visitations. But the blacks are nearly all affected alike by it. They have only to suspect a renewed shaking of things on which they tread, when they rush with a common impulse to the parks, and such shouts and plaintive prayers as there ascend are enough to break down unbelief.

No damage is as yet reported from the shaken city's populace to-night. But the shock was by no means a merely local one. Telegrams are in already from Columbia, this State, and Savannah and Augusta, Ga., showing that they shook also—Columbia at 9.27, with 15 seconds' continuous vibrations, which cleared the buildings of occupants; Savannah at 9:30, with sufficient severity to drive hundreds out of doors for the night; and Augusta with scarcely any perceptible tremors.

In Charleston this evening's shock lasted only five seconds. But it was enough. Just when and where these phenomena will give place to the storms of wind we always get at this season along the coast, is a question of the liveliest interest to all citizens who own or occupy houses in the cities by the sea.

There was another shock at 11:05 to-night. It was not very severe, and its duration was about two seconds.

A Frightful Tragedy.

READING, Pa., September 4.—"This train is going straight into the river! See the lights dancing out yonder," exclaimed a young man named Levi M. Brobst, aged 30, on the midnight express last night, which was fast speeding toward Reading at thirty-five miles per hour. He had suddenly jumped from his seat, and his terrified young bride hastily seized him by the coat and piteously pleaded with him to be seated, "that all was going on well and that he was near to his old home once more." "No; let me go! I'm tired of riding. I'll leave the train."

The young wife maintained her hold on her now desperate husband, and begged assistance from Mrs. High, an elderly lady of the wedding party, seated behind them. Mrs. High also took hold of Mr. Brobst and tried to soothe and restrain him, unavailing, however. The powerfully built young man made a mad plunge from the women, but only the pale, frightened wife's hold was loosened. Mrs. High held on to his coat tightly, but Brobst literally dragged her along until his garment tore, and Mrs. High fell back violently to the car floor.

Realizing that he was free, and before any of the now startled and amazed passengers, many of whom had been aroused from slumber, could interfere, young Brobst shrieked at the top of his voice, "Good-bye, Gussie!" jerked open the door, gained the platform, and in the next second leaped out into the darkness as the train thundered ahead. Down a steep bank of rocks near Annville young Brobst rolled, while his wife swooned and fainted on the car seat. The train was quickly stopped and backed. Brakemen with lamps found the mangled and bleeding body down among the boulders. He was frightfully hurt, and when brought to Reading died without having uttered a word. After Coroner Denhart had held an inquest the body was sent home to Slatington, Pa., where his parents had been joyfully expecting the wedding party.

The widow, who is a stately blonde, was utterly overcome. Her maiden name was Gussie Leffler. Last Wednesday they were married in good style in West Point, Neb., and their trip east was to visit Mr. Brobst's parents at Slatington. The young widow said: "I noticed nothing strange about my husband until we reached Chicago. The excitement of our wedding and his coming home after a ten years' absence made him nervous. He acted strangely, and lost his appetite. Coming east on the Chicago limited he became worse. I tried to have him eat but he said his appetite was gone. He became pale, and then his mind wandered. After he left Harrisburg for Reading he became worse so suddenly that I was alarmed; but I never dreamed he would end his young life in so frightful a manner. He was out of his mind, poor boy," and the widow could say no more.

Brobst's wallet, containing $300, was lost in his terrific leap, and has not yet been recovered. The tragic affair created most intense excitement and sympathy here.

Possibly Bad for the Bermudas.

WASHINGTON, September 5.—Some anxiety is felt with regard to the possible effect of the earthquake at the Bermudas. The islands lie directly in what is now supposed to have been the path of the most violent agitation, and their physical features are such as to warrant the fear that they may have experienced a severe disaster.

Don't Let Him Escape Again.

Labor Parade in Chicago.

CHICAGO, September 6.—The annual street parade in this city to-day was the most noteworthy ever made by the labor organization of Chicago, both in point of numbers and in point of equipment. The day was warm, but perfect in all other respects for a street display. The column began moving at 10.30 o'clock, and marching steadily, was two hours in its passage. The column was divided into nine divisions, and a close computation places the number of marchers in line at between thirty and thirty-five thousand. The feature of the parade was contained in the remarkable uniformity shown by each division of marchers, the latter all being equipped with canes and generally wearing slouch hats of a dark gray color.

All the trades marched by columns of fours, well closed up, and generally moving with great precision and regularity. One column of five hundred employes of the bank and safe manufactories wore white tiles. The column of journeymen tailors, numbering one thousand, wore white derbys and presented probably the finest appearance of any distinct body of the marchers. The American flag was carried by each division, and there were very few mottoes or banners borne in the column. One of the trucks in the line carried the figure of a twenty-foot giant stamping out cheap labor, idealized by the figure of a Chinaman. The procession concluded with an almost endless display of manufactured good on gaily decorated wagons. One of the Knights of Labor assemblies carried a banner inscribed, "Avoid All Politicians."

The Situation in Charleston.

CHARLESTON, S. C., September 6.—Another night of dread and sadness has passed over Charleston, and the dawn of more suspense and fear has come. After the shock at 11.15 o'clock last night the usual discomfiture prevailed, and few eyes closed in actual sleep. It was ascertained this morning that the shock was much stronger in some portions of Charleston than others. About the battery the tremors were more distinctly felt than in the interior of the city. A reporter who was quartered in the Charleston hotel, only a few squares from the battery, had just retired for the night when the shock came. The roll of the winds was heard approaching for fully two or three seconds before the shock was felt. It is a dreadfully threatening noise and it is a good test of the nerve of man. The shock and tremor were so perceptible that the head of the writer was rolled off the pillows, and he was made to turn completely over. From the high ceilings in the long hallways adjacent chunks of plastering fell, while in some buildings across the street the falling of plastering resembled the steady fire of artillery.

The ceiling in the bedroom of the press representative swayed during the nine or ten seconds' duration of the shock as if it would all give way. The plastering in these old structures is more than an inch thick, firm as stone, and a section of it falling a distance of thirteen or fourteen feet would brain a man or crush his limbs as readily as if it were a section of boiler iron. When the plastering near by began to fall the writer sprang from his bed, assumed a crouching position near the wall, and held a pillow over his head to afford him protection from the tumbling missiles. A number of the other occupants of the hotel jumped under their beds or ran out of the building into the streets. For two hours afterward there were slight recurring tremors keeping the people in a state of painful trepidation.

Briefs.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 6.—Hon. W. W. Walton, proprietor of the Clay City (Kan.) Dispatch and a well-known politician and ex-speaker of the lower house, was fatally injured in a railroad accident yesterday.

ROME, Sept. 6.—The cholera returns for yesterday are as follows: Torrence Del Annunziata, 33 new cases, 18 deaths; San Marco, 31 new cases, 13 deaths; other infected districts, 29 new cases, 10 deaths.

CHARLESTON, Sept. 6.—At a mass meeting by the Knights of Labor held to-night the rate of wages for mechanics and laborers was agreed to—a raise of fifty cents having been made in each class.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 6.—The Evening Dispatch, a two-cent paper, made its first appearance to-day. It is independent in politics and under the management of Messrs. Remington & Corbett.

BOMBAY, Sept. 6.—Lord Dufferin, the British viceroy, has abrogated the treaty with the rajah of Sikkim, because the rajah permitted Thibetan troops to enter his territory.

PHILADELPHIA, September 6.—Germantown defeated the West India cricketers to-day by one inning and 88 runs. Score—Germantown, 310; West Indias, first inning 74, second 148.

ST. LOUIS, September 6.—Mrs. Belle Blacke was killed at her home near Glen Elder, Mitchell county, Kansas, Saturday afternoon. The circumstances strongly indicate murder. Aaron Blake, the father-in-law of the woman, was the only person at home at the time of her death, and he is held for the murder.

A Railroad Smashup.

COATESVILLE, September 5.—A Wilmington and Northern passenger train which left Wilmington yesterday morning for Birmingham Park, collided with a special freight train near Depont's station. Both locomotives crashed into each other and were badly wrecked. A half dozen passengers and freight cars were smashed. J. R. Retten, engineer of the passenger train, was severely hurt. The fireman, Girard Launsbury sustained probably fatal injuries.

The Brotherhood in a Wreck.

EASTON, Pa., Sept. 6.—An excursion train carrying the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers of this vicinity to Scranton, ran into the rear end of a coal train on the Lehigh and Susquehanna railroad at Glendon last night. G. W. Dye, fireman, was killed, and Fred Yeoman, engineer, seriously injured. The engine and several cars were wrecked.

The Election in Vermont.

WHITE RIVER, Vt., September 7.—Sixty-four towns give Ormsbee, republican, for governor 5,666 majority. Stewart and Grant, republican, are elected to congress from the First and Second districts respectively. Forty-two towns return Edmunds' representatives. From seventeen there is no report. Four make no choice and three are anti-Edmunds.

A Successful Yacht Race.

SANDY HOOK, N. J., September 7.—The start was made at 10.57:20, with the Mayflower about one length ahead. The Mayflower broke out her jib topsail as she crossed the line and drew rapidly away from the Galatea. They were both on the starboard track reaching for Owl's Head, the Mayflower drawing away from the Galatea constantly. Bands were playing and a great crowd of vessels surrounded the yachts in the rear. At 11.10 both yachts tacked to port, the Mayflower being to windward. The Galatea set her jib topsails and was holding the Mayflower. Wind five miles. The Mayflower was working most to windward on this track and seemed to make faster time than the Galatea. The Mayflower at 11.15 took the Galatea's wind, and passed her as though the Englishman were standing still. At 11.22 the Mayflower backed to starboard, and a moment later the Galatea went in stays, the Mayflower leading the Englishman by about one quarter mile. From this time on the Mayflower increased her lead. It was the grandest marine spectacle ever seen in New York bay. Surrounded by nearly 500 steam and sailing crafts the Mayflower came tearing along through a narrow path of water and crossed the finish line amid the firing of guns, screech of whistles and waving of acres of bunting and handkerchiefs 12 minutes and 40 seconds actual, or 12 minutes and 2 seconds corrected time ahead of the Galatea, which also received as hearty a welcome when she arrived. The next contest will be sailed on Thursday over a course twenty miles to windward or leeward, starting from Sandy Hook light ship.

A Quiet Day at Charleston.

CHARLESTON, S. C., September 4.—This has been a quiet day here and hour by hour more thought is given to the needs of the present and wants of the future. The shake to-day was not worse than would be caused by a heavily laden wagon. Mayor Courtney was busily engaged all day in systemizing and arranging measures of relief. The members of the First Presbyterian church held a meeting to-day and resolved to make a general appeal for aid to the Presbyterian churches of the country. Their beautiful building is ruined and their congregation impoverished now.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL NEWS.

THE movements of Prince Alexander, of Bulgaria, are confusing in their rapidity. Two weeks ago he was suddenly seized and carried away, and the probabilities were that he would be imprisoned for some time. Then he reappeared and was received with so much enthusiasm that one was led to suppose that his subjects would fight for him until the last man had perished. The next we hear from him is in a speech in which he formally quits the throne and retires from the country, saying that to do so is necessary for the peace of Bulgaria. A peculiar government and a strange species of patriotism must exist among the Bulgars.

—"Stay at Home My Heart and Rest," Longfellow, music by W. A. Ogden. In this degenerated age of music, when so much of the veriest trash is issued, it seems and is actually refreshing to see a song like the above, with a pure melody and a thorough and musicianly treatment. We heartily recommend it to all. Price 40 cents. Ing. Fischer, Publisher. Toledo, O.

A TERRIBLE drought is prevailing in Texas, extending over half of the State. It is really more damaging than the South Carolina earthquake and Texas will be many millions poorer by reason of it. It is said that in some places in Texas rain has not fallen for fourteen months. This state of affairs does not not seem to indicate that Texas is a very desirable State to live in. In proportion to its population it gives the largest Democratic majority of any State in the Union.

OF course, a Republican pays his State and County tax on general principles of honor, but it whould be well for committeemen in the several townships to see that all the Republicans in their district have attended to this duty.

EVERY Republican voter should see that he has in his possession a receipt for State and County tax, paid within two years. If he has not, he must pay such tax at once to secure a vote.

A VICTORY for the Republicans in this State this fall will end the days of extra legislative sessions, which cost the State thousands of dollars and accomplish nothing.

TO SECURE a vote it is necesary that every voter must pay his State and County tax. Will the vigilance committees see that this duty is attended to at once.

THE health of ex-President Arthur is reported to have improved very much since he has been at New London, Connecticut.

THERE will be much better times and a restoration of confidence when the Republican victories begin this fall.

THE entire Republican ticket gives perfect satisfaction and will be elected.

BEAVER'S majority will be 100,000.

Forepaugh's Show.

The uncommon success of the Boston engagement, both financially and artistically, of this great entertainment are unparalleled in the history of tented amusements, and the lavish praise bestowed upon Mr. Forepaugh's features and performances by the critical press of that city establish his preeminence over all competitors beyond a doubt. The coming here of the show on Tuesday, October 12th, is arousing tremendous enthusiasm. The staid and usually reticent Boston Daily Advertiser of June 16, has this to say:

In spite of the threatening weather yesterday two large audiences were in attendance on Forepaugh's Circus at the Coliseum Grounds. Everything was in fine working order, and the performance ran as smoothly as though they had always been given there. The numerous features—so numerous as almost to bewilder the spectators by their rapid changes—were presented in the most satisfactory manner, and received the emphatic approval of the thousands present. The marvelous shooting of Captain Bogardus and his four son pupils, and the pictures of lawless frontier life as presented by the Indians and cow-boys, are among the most popular entertainments in the show.

SPECIAL MENTION.

Encouragement for the People.

So long as the failing embers of vitality are capable of being re-kindled into a warm and general glow, just so long there is hope for the weak and emaciated invalid. Let him not therefore, despond, but derive encouragement from this, and from the further fact that there is a restorative most potent in renewing the dilapidated powers of a broken down system. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is daily reviving strength in the bodies and hope in the minds of the feeble and nervous. Appetite, refreshing sleep, the acquisition of flesh and color, are blessings attendant upon the reparative processes which this priceless invigorant speedily initiates and carries to a successful conclusion. Digestion is restored, the blood fertilized, and sustenance afforded to each life-sustaining organ by the Bitters, which is inoffensive even to the feminine palate, vegetable in composition, and thoroughly safe. Use it, and regain vigor.

—Remember Grand Army Day in Lewisburg, on Thursday September 9, will be a grand affair. Train leaves Bellefonte at 6 a. m. Returning leaves Lewisburg at 10.15 (instead of 9) p. m. Those wishing to do so can remain in Lewisburg all night and return next day. Tickets good for two days and cost but $1.97, round trip of 130 miles.

PARTIES INTENDING TO purify their blood and place their systems on a proper basis will do well to give Vinegar Bitters, new style, a trial. Its pleasant taste, associated with the certainty of a speedy cure, tend to make it a medicine without an equal.

—From all accounts that we have seen in the papers of this vicinity, the earthquake was felt more severely in Boalsburg than at any other place in this part Pennsylvania.

Death of an Esteemed Young Lady.

NITTANY, Sept. 6, 1886.

MR. EDITOR: Died, Sept. 3d, 1886, after an illness of nearly twelve weeks, Irene, daughter of Adam and Lydia Decker, aged 17 years and 1 month. Her disease was typhoid pneumonia, ending in consumption. She was ever a patient sufferer, never complaining and from the beginning of her sickness she did not believe she would ever recover. She told Elva, her oldest sister, when she had been sick only a short time that she expected to die, and had no fear of death. She several times appeared to be getting better, but would always have relapses, leaving her weaker than before. All that loving care and medical attendance could do was done, and could the love and sympathy of the community have availed aught she certainly would have recovered.

Renie, as she was familiarly called, was a general favorite. She had a kind word and a pleasant smile for every one and her loss will be deeply felt in the family circle, in the community and in the church and Sabbath-school. Only this spring she had taken charge of a class of little ones in the Sabbath-school at Snydertown and she gave promise of becoming a noble worker in the Sabbath-school cause. But God in His providence has ordered otherwise and we humbly bow to His will.

The family have been badly afflicted of late. Mr. Decker's health has not been good for several years. Only about two weeks ago a younger daughter, little Ella, aged 8, was fatally burned, dying within twenty-four hours after the accident, and Mr. Decker had his hands severely burned in extinguishing the flames. Her death, coming at this time while Renie was lying at death's door, was a terrible shock to the family. Ella was a bright, loving child in good health and with full promise of long life, quick to learn and always bright and active, and being called away so unexpectedly has left a wound which will be slow to heal. But they have borne all with Christian fortitude and resignation, believing that although God's ways at times are dark and mysterious and hard to understand yet that all will be well and that in the morning there will be light. Renie was buried on Sunday, September 5th, in the Reformed Cemetery at Hublersburg, Rev. Shoemaker, her pastor, preaching the funeral discourse. Rev. Brubaker was also present and, in a few remarks, paid a loving tribute in estimation of her life and character. The funeral was one of the largest ever held in the church, many not being able to get in the building. We shall miss her, but "our loss is her eternal gain," for "we sorrow not without hope."

Death of Mrs. Elizabeth Livingston.

On Sunday night, at 11 o'clock, one of the most beloved ladies of this community passed away from the stage of a useful and active life into the happy home prepared for the people of God. Mrs. Elizabeth Livingston was respected for her noble Christian life and her possession of every excellent virtue. Although in the 80th year of her age—a decade past the allotted three score years and ten—yet she will be greatly missed and her place will long be vacant.

She was Miss Johnston, daughter of James Johnston, and her birthplace was in this place or in this immediate vicinity. Her husband, John Livingston, preceded her to the heavenly home many years ago. Her life for three quarters of a century was closely connected with that of the oldest families of the county. Quiet, unassuming, generous in disposition and in gifts of such worldly goods as she possessed, her influence will be almost perpetual in its glorious results.

Funeral on Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, the service being held in the Presbyterian church.

—The solicitor for this paper is now making a very enjoyable trip through Penns Valley. Last week he was in the neighborhood of Centre Hall and Tusseyville. He formed quite a number of new acquaintances and took several new subscribers to the best weekly paper in Centre county, The Fountain. Among those who are bound to have a good family newspaper are John Carper and J. A. Hoover, of Linden Hall; Peter Breon and G. B. Fortney, of Centre Hall; Samuel Kleinfelter and Ira Grossman, of Tusseyville. There are numerous others who live further down the valley whose names we cannot give at present. Our man enjoyed the hospitality of many of the good people of the valley. He doesn't think the people ever turn tramps away without giving them something to eat. Among those who were so kind as to keep him all night or give him dinner were Mr. Jacob Wagner, Mr. Samuel Durst, Joe McClellaad, G. M. Boal and James Swabb.

—Our reporter awakened Monday morning under unusually pleasant circumstances. When enjoying his morning dream he thought that 10,000 angels were serenading him with harps, flutes, viols and such heavenly instruments. Soon, however, when he was more fully aware of surrounding occurrences the music seemed more familiar and he became cognizant that he had heard those strains before. They sounded wonderfully like the tuneful melody from Artist Beck's clarionet, and peeping, en robe de chambre, from the window, he beheld that gentleman making the morning echo with his choicest airs. The music was appreciated and the musician has our profoundest thanks.

A Pretty Wedding in the Methodist Church.

Church weddings usually prove attractive enough to draw many spectators and this was the case on Tuesday evening, when Mr. Charles Shuey and Miss Rebecca Mulhollen were wedded in the Methodist church. The sacred edifice was filled to repletion, and all had time to admire the gracefull floral decoration inside the chancel. Several very useful and graceful young gentlemen ushered the attendants to seats. We noticed Ed. Cooke, J. C. Meyer, Hard Harris and Ed. Richards officia ting in this capacity.

The first necessary part of the wedding party to arrive was Miss Shrom, the organist. Immediately afterwards, Rev. D. S. Monroe, D. D., the officiating minister, made his appearance, and promptly on time (7.30 p. m.) the joyful notes of Mendelshon's wedding march announced the arrival of the wedding party.

The party proceeded up the aisle in he following order: J. C. Meyer and Hard Harris, Ed. Richards and Ed Cooke. Eugene Fleming with Miss Maggie Haupt Prof. David Lieb with Miss Rachel Mulhollen, the bridegroom, Mr. Charles Shuey, with his bride, Miss Rebecca Mulhollen. They made a very pretty picture as they arranged themselves around the chancel. The bride and her maids were attired almost precisely alike, in brown dresses of soft material with bead trimming. The ring was used in the ceremony, which was solemn and impressive.

The exit from the church was made in good order and a reception followed the ceremony, in which congratulations, good wishes, pleasant conversation and wedding cake were mingled in inextricable confusion.

The bride is a beautiful young lady and is popular with all. She is the possessor of all the accomplishments which made a good wife and a genial companion. Our friend Shuey is to be envied for his good fortune in securing such a splendid matrimonial prize. The groom is a member of the prosperous grocery firm of Erhard & Shuey. He is manly in appearance, very industrious, and moral and upright in conduct. We wish the happy bride and groom all the good fortune that humanity is heir to.

The 8.55 p. m. train took them on their way to Atlantic City, where they will spend about ten days.

SIX Republicans will be elected to the State Senate this year to take the place of Democrats. These districts are Schuylkill Bucks, Montgomery, Crawford, Susquehanna-Wayne and Centre-Clinton-Clearfield. The change in the last mentioned district, however, depends upon a certain contingency which we will not name just now, as we do not want our Democratic friends to profit by the knowledge we could give.

THE number of female teachers is constantly increasing in the common schools of Pennsylvania, while the number of male teachers is correspondingly decreasing. The reason is, that the wages are so small that a young man cannot afford to enter the profession, while there is a never failing supply of young women who will teach for salaries just sufficient to purchase for themselves a few fine clothes which their fathers cannot afford to buy.

—An excellent concert or parlor song of moderate difficulty is "Break, Break, Break," from Tennyson, music by the celebrated Frederick H. Pease, who has gained an enviable reputation as a writer of first class songs, and anything from his pen can be ordered without fear of disappointment. Mailed on receipt of 40 cents by the Publisher, Ign. Fischer, Toledo, O.

PROF. POWELL makes out that earthquakes travel from twenty-five to sixty-five miles per minute. The thing should be harnessed and made a motive power. Nothing is impossible since Franklin bottled lightning, but it may take longer to tame it than it has to catch the sea serpent.

THERE is no credit to Democrats in the way they have used the temporary lease of power now just about closing. It will be taken away from them, as they have proved themselves unprofitable servants.

THE W. C. T. U. and the Good Templars are the best temperance organizations we know of and all temperance organizations would do well to pursue their work in the same way.

CHAIRMAN HENSEL feels greatly encouraged. He thinks he can keep Beaver's majority below one hundred thousand.

Discussing dentists: "I tell you he is the most expert man in the profession you haven't time to howl before the tooth is out." "Oh, that's nothing to my dentist. He's quite as quick, and the operation is so painless that every time he pulls out a double tooth, you have to thank him and cry 'encore.'"

It is a strange and pathetic fact that, in spite of their culture, their analytic philosophy, their pantheistic religion, their isoteric Buddhism and their baked beans, they do know how to build yachts in Boston.

EDITOR'S TABLE.

The September Eclectic comes again to delight those interested in the best foreign literature. The article selected for the current issue are valuable, suggestive, and entertaining. Leopold Katscher's monograph on Traine is a brilliant study of the French historian, and opens the number. Two other fascinating literary papers are Palgrave's "Poetry Compared with the Other Fine Arts," and "Novelists and their Patrons," by Alex. Innes Shand. Augustine Birrell's review of the life and times of Edmund Burke will be read with much interest, and another powerful paper is that on "The Growth of the English Novel," from the Quarterly Review. Students of architecture will find room for cogitation in Mr. F. H. Baker's paper on "The Evolution of Architecture;" and those who have studied the evolution of types and ideals in art will turn quickly to Charles Newton Scott's "Child-God in Art." Other important and suggestive papers are The Drama of the Day," by Herman Merivale, and Mr. Jordan's article on "China." There are several poems and minor articles of a high standard, and the contents of the number as a whole will be certain to gratify readers of intellectual tastes, a class to which the readers of this magazine distinctly belong.

Published by E. R. Pelton, 25 Bond Street, New York. Terms, $5 per year; single numbers, 45 cents; trial subscription for 4 months, $1. ECLECTIC and any $4 Magazine $8.

Farmers and stock-growers will read with profit the article on "Short-horn Cattle" which is contributed to the September Harper's by Lewis F. Allen, the founder and long the proprietor of the "Short-horn Herd Book." Beginning with the remote origin of this noble breed in early Scandinavian Britain, Mr. Allen shows the development of their excellences first on the Monastery lands, then on the estates of noblemen and small farmers. He also sketches the most famous sales and prices, culminating in the Walcott auction of 1873, where twelve Duchess cows and heifers averaged $20,000, and three cows sold for over $30,000 apiece. The number of short-horn breeders in this country is estimated at fully four thousand, with herds of half a dozen to hundreds of cattle each, and the characteristics of the variety are well indicated. An abundance of engravings of famous and typical animals increases the value of the article.

The June number of the Political Science Quarterly opens with a defence of Andrew Jackson, by Prof. Morse, Amherst College. W. A. Dunning gives a scholarly resume of the Constitutional Questions which arose during the Civil War. Hon. W. L. Scruggs pleads for certain reforms in our law of citizenship. Dr. Seligman gives an interesting account of the Christian Socialists of England. H. H. Neill defends the recent decision of the Supreme Court in the Legal Tender question against Banerofi's criticism. The last two articles deal with Foreign Questions—Prof. Burgess on the victory of the Norwegian Parliament over the King, and Dr. Bowen on recent history of Egypt. This number has the imprint of the Oxford University Press, London, and Ginn & Co., 743 Broadway, New York.

The August number of the Dorcas magazine comes to us with many seasonable suggestions for women. All kinds of womens work and how to do it is described in this valuable work. An interesting article is the one upon Chinese Ribbon Embroidery, which has lately re-established itself under the title of Rococo Embroidery, and many practical hints, philosophical and domestic, are found in Mrs. Starr's chapter on Home Decoration. An outline of the work accomplished by the Society of Decorative Art, together with odd papers on various other interesting topics, make Dorcas for August a particularly readable and useful number. A sample copy costs 10 cents. Address Dorcas Publishing Co., New York.

Babyhood, in its August issue introduces a department of "Nursery Observations," consisting of short extracts from its large and varied correspondence describing special traits of children. The other departments of this number are unusually entertaining and instructive. One of the most important articles is Diarrhœa from a Hygienic Standpoint," by Dr. H. D. Chapin. Other medical authorities discuss "The Baby in Its Carriage," "Sea Bathing for Children," and "Water Filters." Marion Harland writes on "Old Wives' Fables," and Mrs. Lucy White Palmer on "The Coming Guest." [15 cents a number; $1.50 a year. 5 Beekman St., New York.]

A Cable dispatch to the N. Y. Evening Post announces that "a contract has been sealed between The Century Co. and T. Fisher Unwin, by which The Century Magazine in the future will be published by the latter. Mr. Unwin, is the most enterprising and experienced of the younger publishers here. During several seasons a number of the best books by English and American authors have issued from his house. The Century could not be placed in better hands." Frederick Warne & Co. will continue to publish St. Nicholas.

AN EMBRACE.

A dainty muslin dress
Is very close beside me,
The pretty form I press,
Nor heed whate'er betide me.

Around her slender waist
My right hand quickly passes;
The form is then embraced
Like any other lass'.

But, strange though it may seem,
Such hugging ne'er effects me;
I wait no maiden's scream,
Nor care if man detects me.

These pleasures I abhor,
As soon I'd hug a mummy,
I'm clerking in a store—
The dress is on a dummy.

The Horrors of an Enthquake.

CHARLESTON, S. C., Sept. 1.—An earthquake such as never before known in the history of this city swept over Charleston last night shortly after 10 o'clock, causing more loss and injury to property and far more loss of life than the cyclone of last year. The first shock was by far the most severe. The effect can be judged by the experience of Captain Dawson, of the News-Courier, who lives in a massive brick residence on Pull street near Rutledge street. Captain Dawson was in the room on the second story when the first shock occurred. The house seemed literally to turn on its axis. The first shock was followed by a second and third, less severe than the first. The air was filled with cries and shrieks of women and children. From every side of that quiet neighborhood came the cry of "Help us!" "God save us!" "Oh, my God!" It was worse than the worst battle of the war.

There were in all five shocks, diminishing in violence from the first. What a scene was there! The side walks in the streets were dotted with mothers, wives and daughters with their protectors awaiting in anxious expectation still another agony. The air was thick with horrid rumors and the lurid glare of fires but heightened the general ruin.

Two slight shocks of earthquake have been felt since. The first at 8.25 a. m. and one at 1.30 p. m. Neither of them did any further destruction. Not even during General Gillmore's bombardment of this city has there ever been such a deplorable state of affars here. The city is literally in ruins and the people are living in open squares and public parks. There is a great rush to the railroad depots to get away, but owing to the earthquake no trains have been able to be dispatched from the city Telegraphic communication is also cut off, with the exception of one wire of the Southern Telegraph company, which is crowded with anxious private messages.

It is impossible to depict the ruin and desolation that prevails here. Not a single place of business in the city, save a drug store, which is busy preparing prescriptions for the wounded, is open. It is impossible also to give any correct estimate of the killed and wounded, as bodies are constantly being disinterred from the debris of wrecked houses. One undertaker who was interviewed stated that he had furnished eight coffins up to noon to-day. Many of the dead are lying unburied—principally of the poorer classes of colored people—who will be buried by the county.

Owing to the demoralized condition of everything here it is impossible to give correct facts further than this: The number of casualties has not yet been ascertained, but is probably from thirty to forty killed and over one hundred injured. The loss to property will probably reach eight or ten millions of dollars. Three-fourths of the buildings in the city will have to be rebuilt. There was very little shipping in the port and none of it was injured. The disturbances have not at all affected the water in the harbor, although it is evident that all the shock came from a southeasterly direction and therefore from the sea there are no signs of a tidal wave as yet.

LATER.—11 50 p. m.—Another shock has just passed over the city, rather more severe than any since last night at 9.53, knocking down several houses.

After the Earthquake.

CHARLESTON, S. C., September 2.—The following is related as one of the instances of the earthquake: A train freighted with excursionists was running along about a mile south of Jeddburg, when all of a sudden, in the language of one of the excursionists, the train appeared to have left the track and was going up, up, up, into the air. This was a rising wave. Suddenly it descended and as it rapidly fell it was flung over to the east, the side of the car apparently leaning over at not less than an angle of forty-five degrees. Then there was a reflex action and the train lighted and was hurled with a roar as of a discharge of artillery to the west, and finally subsided on the track and took a plunge downward, evidently the descending wave.

The engineer put down the brakes tight, but so great was the original and added momentum that the train kept right ahead. It is said on trustworthy authority that the train actually galloped along the track, the front and rear truck rising and falling alternately. The utmost confusion prevailed. Women and children shrieked with dismay and the bravest heart quailed in momentary expectation of a more terrible catastrophe. Rev. Ellison Capers chanced to be on the board and lost no time in conveying, as best he could in the agony of the moment, the best advice and counsel he could offer. The train was then taken back in the direction of Juddburg, and on the way back the work of the earthquake was terribly apparent. It is simple truth to state that every soul on board was saved solely through the interposition of Divine Providence.

There is rather a more cheerful feeling to-night but no sense of security will repair the shattered houses and renew the ruined homes. Offers of assistance are coming from different quarters and it is expected that the council will organize a relief committee to-morrow. Despite the losses by the earthquake Charleston is in as good a position as ever for the transaction of the usual autumn trade. This statement is made to correct an existing erroneous impression that commercial facilities of that port are impaired.

The following additional deaths are reported: John Cook, colored, fisherman; daughter of Isaac Sawyer, a colored barber; a colored baby child of Mrs. Parnvel.

Last night the old scenes of fright and fear were enacted in the public squares and parks. Frail women, some of them almost dead, and with infants in arms, were driven to the necessity of spending the nights on the square, with only such covering as could be improvised by the use of blankets, shawls and sheets. In many of the squares, notably at Washington park, the fright and annoyance to these people were increased by the excrutiating religious performances of the colored people who crowded the parks.

The night wore on slowly and painfully. At 11:50 p. m. a heavy earthquake passed though the city. Its coming was presaged by quite a number of explosions dim and distant, which commenced to be heard fully five minutes before the vibration was felt. As it passed by to the northwest there followed sounds which indicated the falling walls of buildings.

This was the last vibration last night. At daybreak there was a movement and as the sun rose, and as there had been no additional vibration, many of the people pulled up their tents and departed to their shattered homes in the earnest hope that they had participated in their last picnic in the park.

The Grangers' Picnic.

HARRISBURG, Pa., September 2.—The crowd at the grangers' picnic at William's Grove to-day numbered at least thirty thousand people, and many estimate the attendance as high as forty thousand. The speakers this morning were Mortimer L. Whitehead, state lecturer of New Jersey, who discussed a variety of subjects, and Colonel Victor E. Piolett This afternoon it was announced that Governor Pattison, Chairman Cooper and Colonel A. Wilson Norris would address the assemblage, but they failed to arrive. It is now stated that they will be present to-morrow. Speeches were made by John Norris, of the Philadelphia Record, on anti-discrimination, and by Mortimore Whitehead and M. S Wherry, candidate for the legislature in Cumberland county. It was the greatest day in the history of the picnic exposition.

A Big Attendance.

HARRISBURG, September 1.—This has been an almost perfect day from a weather point view and thousands of people, men, women, and children, flocked to Williams' Grove to enjoy the sights presented by the interState picnic of the Patrons of Husbandry. This was the largest Wednesday in point of attendance in the history of the exhibition. The number of visitors was variously estimated at from twenty thousand to thirty thousand. Many of these will remain on the ground all night securing such accommodations as they can.

Briefs.

WASHINGTON, September 1. The public debt statement issued this afternoon shows the reduction in the debt during August to be $1,910,099.02 and the total cash in the treasury to be $474,270,651.74.

NEW YORK, September 1.—Hanlan defeated Courtney at Rockaway this afternoon by ten lengths.

NEW YORK, September 1.—In the cricket match to-day the gentlemen from England scored 203 the first inning and Staten Island 49 for four wickets.

SAVANNAH, Ga., September 2.—Two slight shocks were felt here between 3 and 4 o'clock this morning. Our citizens are still alarmed and many are staying in the street.

CHICAGO, September 2.—A dispatch received here from the president of the board of trade at New Orleans, says: The attending physicians declare that the alleged yellow fever patients at Boloxi, suffered simply from intermittent bilious fever.

BARCELONA, Spain, September 2.—While the master builders of this city were in session yesterday, discussing the masons' strike, gunpowder was exploded under the tables occupied by the conference. Six of the master builders were injured by the explosives.

The Earthquake Takes a Fresh Start

CHARLESTON, S. C., September 3.—A sharp shock of earthquake was felt just before 11 o'clock to-night and two buildings fell, while a woman, name unknown, was killed by a falling wall this evening. The people rushed from their houses to the streets.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., September 3.—At 10.02 o'clock to-night a distinct shock of earthquake was felt here lasting five seconds. It caused great excitement.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., September 3.—At 11.05 to-night another earthquake shock was felt at a number of points in this city. The buildings rolled slightly and gas fixtures swayed perceptible. The duration of the demonstration was very brief.

RICHMOND, Va., September 3.—At 11:03 to night a shock of earthquake was felt here. In some places in the upper part of the city it was as severe as that of last Tuesday night, the people in some cases leaving their beds and rushing into the streets. The oscillation is said to have been very perceptible from the southeast to northwest. No noise accompanied the shock.

RALEIGH, N. C., September 3.—At 11.02 to night a well defined shock of earthquake was felt here. It was preceded by a light rumbling noise. The oscillation of buildings was marked on upper floors.

AUGUSTA, Ga., September 3.—At 10.40 p. m. another shock was distinctly felt. The streets are again filled with people.

WILMINGTON, N. C., September 3.—Another distinct but not severe earthquake shock was felt here at 12 p. m. Much alarm was created and many people fled from their homes.

The Queen's Sympathy.

WASHINGTON, September 3.—The following dispatch was received by cable to-day from Queen Victoria:

BALMORAL, September 3.—To the President of the United States: I desire to express my profound sympathy with the sufferers by the late earthquakes and await with anxiety more intelligence which I hope will show the effects to have been less disastrous than reported.

[Signed] THE QUEEN.

Rumored Destruction of Sumter.

WASHINGTON, September 2.—A rumor has very mysteriously gained circulation here to the effect that the town of Sumter, South Carolina, has partially disappeared. Efforts are now being made to affirm or deny the story.

Of course when a man is sound and well he don't care a copper for all the medicine on the face of the earth. He has no use for it. But when disease is eating his life out he wants the right prescription and he wants it right away. For that reason all that know what Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy is turn to that for help, and it never disappoints them. And it is just as beneficial to new friends as it is to old ones. Pleasant to the palate and gentle in its action.

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetation remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma and all Throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after testing its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge, to all who desire it, this recipe, in German, French or English, with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper, W. A. NOYES, 149 Power's Block, Rochester, N.Y. 18 11 1y

—"An Adamless Eden!" That is impossible. Without Adam Eden would be a failure.

—Thieves are operating quite extensively in some of the rural districts of this county.

—Butter is pretty scarce just now, and those who have plenty of it should take it to Valentine's stores.

—D. C. Wilt a former citizen of Millhiem, died at his late home in Franklin, Pa., on Monday, August 30.

—Spring Mills' new creamery building is about completed and will be in operation by the middle of September.

—If you hear a rumble and a roar in Mother Earth, just conclude it's an earthquake and hasten to some vacant lot.

—That last lot of water melons purchased by John Sourbeck are beauties, and are sure to tempt those who know a good melon.

—Remember, children, that the schools begin next week on the 7th and 8th. Be present the first day and attend regularly thereafter.

—The small boy is deeply engaged studying the gorgeously illuminated posters of the circus, which are brilliant in every direction.

—A new chandelier has been placed in the audience room of the Millheim Evangelical church. It was presented by the ladies of the Aid Society.

—Mrs. Anna Straw, of Lock Haven, died on Tuesday at noon. She was 75 years of age and was at one time a resident of Millheim, this county.

—The second entertainment of McMillen's North Carolina Troubadours was given on Thursday evening to a large audience and was a great success.

—We think a law should be passed preventing newspaper scribes from cracking jokes when they record serious accidents. Don't you, Centre Hall Reporter?

—A novel entertainment is promised Bellefonte on Saturday evening, September 11. It will be Lilly Clay's original company of ladies in "An Adamless Eden."

—Chairman T. P. Rynder, the hopeful Greenbacker, is off on a visit to the western part of the State to work up the interest of his party in the coming State Convention.

—It is said that there is to be another grocery store in this place. The venturesome gentlemen who are to open it are James Beaner, of Lock Haven, and his brother, of Centre Hall.

—The 5.20 p. m. mail west on Wednesday night was detained an hour or more to make connections. The Snow Shoe train made the transfer of passengers between Bellefonte and Milesburg.

—The Watchman last week advises all Prohibitionists to vote for the Prohibition candidates. This it does under the conviction that one vote for the Prohibition candidates will be one from the Republican party.

—This has been a wonderful season for its sales of ice cream and the dealers have vied with each other in attracting customers. Jacobs have been the most constant and persistent advertisers and have reaped the reward.

—Rev. M. B. Laning, of Milesburg and Unionville, has been attending a Sunday-school convention of the Baptist Association at Altoona. Rev. Laning is a live and energetic minister, and is adding to the prosperity of the congregations under his charge.

—A lodge of Odd Fellows will be instituted at Snow Shoe next Tuesday evening. J. B. Nicholson, Grand secretary of the Grand Lodge will officiate as grand master. Members of the Bellefonte lodge and delegations from other lodges will be represented.

—Miss Ella Glenn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Glenn, entertained a large company of her friends on Wednesday evening. The Girod-Bierly-Lyon orchestra was present to furnish music. The young people enjoyed themselves greatly, prolonging the pleasure until 1.30 a. m.

—It seems absolutely necessary just now to go west. These earthquakes which occur east of the Mississippi river are worse than cyclones. They travel faster and one earthquake such as that of the past few days can frighten more people out of their boots than twenty dozen of the greatest cyclones ever known.

—The Democratic convention of Clinton county, held in Lock Haven, on Tuesday afternoon, August 31, placed in nomination the following ticket: For Congress, S. R. Peale; State Senator, T. C. Hipple; Assembly; J. U. Shaffer, of Renovo; Associate Judges, Messrs. Crawford and Dieffenbach; County Surveyor, F. J David.

Invest Money in Business.

Don't wait for the new Bellefonte Iron Company, now beginning business operations here, to accomplish everything, but start up other enterprises, in town and help the boom along. The articles illustrative of the resources of this county, published for years past in the newspapers, the correspondence of business men and the efforts of the Board of Trade have been successful in attracting capital here, and we don't intend to stop now, and let the business boom work itself out. No, there are many first-class "openings" here for the man of brains and determination. There are three or four manufactories which might be started and conducted here with profit. Each new one started will help along those already in operation. Every workman brought here is a new customer for the clothing store, the grocery, the dry goods establishment, and will aid every business.

While, perhaps, there is not sufficient capital here to build great furnaces, there is enough to invest in enterprises requiring less capital, and that might be named by the dozen. It is a reflection on the business name of this community to have large buildings, that might be utilized, standing idle.

Now, a word to the Pennsylvania Railroad. We wont haul it over the coals, because we believe that more will be gained by dispassionate argument. It is conceded by our wise men that it would be greatly to the advantage of the town for better carrying rates to be offered this community. The railroad company has made large sums of money from this town. Every branch road which it has built has paid handsomely. It has been favored by the people. But we heard the gentleman, who perhaps has given the road more freight than any other man in the county, say that he has never received a concession in rates from the company. Without saying that this is unjust, we submit that the railroad company is standing in its own light. In this day of push it is the many small profits rather than the few great ones that must be depended on. If the railroad company desires to double, or treble, its freight from this section it must give our business men proper encouragement. After all, the true theory of business as well as of happiness is that the benefit of one is the benefit of all. All business men seek to gain friends by treating their customers with consideration. Let the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, which certainly has wise business men at its head, help along the boom in Bellefonte.

Robbery at Fowler.

The Tyrone correspondent of the Altoona Times gives the following from Fowler:

Late on Tuesday night or early Wednesday morning the postoffice and railroad office at Fowler station, on the B. E. V. Railroad, Centre county, was broken into, and all the stamps and postal cards taken. The amount wasn't much, but that was not the fault of the thief or thieves. They also tore open every letter in the office, but it is presumed they had their trouble for their pains. They gained an entrance by battering in the windows with plank they had taken from a lumber yard. Some few years ago there was a series of robberies in this same neighborhood, and not until John T. Fowler had run them down and succeeded in landing several of them in the penitentiary did the depredations cease. This gentleman intends to do the same thing again. He says his neighborhood is infested with petty thieves, and he has his eyes on those who don't do any work, as he thinks a man who won't work must steal, and he is bound to break up the gang. A word to the wise should be sufficient.

—The Altoona Times, Saturday morning, calls Milesburg's citizen, T. P. Rynder, "a distinguished visitor," and then says: "Mr. T. P. Rynder, chairman of the Greenback Labor committee of the State of Pennsylvania, was in the city this week. He informed us that the convention of his party would be held at Harrisburg on the 16th inst. He understood that an effort was being made on the part of some prominent politicians to capture the convention, but he assured us that such scheming would be resisted to the bitter end. Mr. T. P. Rynder thought that Mr. Robert J. Huston, of Lancaster, a prominent notion dealer, would be nominated for Governor, but didn't know who would make up the balance of the ticket."

—There was received from Colorado, Friday evening, an animal called in the local terminology of that State, a bourro. It is a small animal, with long ears, and a wise look, gentle and docile. The cowboys use them for their rides over the prairie. It came to Gen. Beaver, and, in addition to his address on the frame cage, there was also the advice, "Get there this time, General." It is supposed to be a present from friends in that State.

—Gov. Curtin, Hon. Samuel Linn, of Williamsport, Rev. Joseph H. Barnard, of Madison, Indiana, and two other gentlemen stood on High street, chatting, at noon Saturday. It is fair to infer that the talk was interesting. The Governor is a good story-teller, Judge Linn is equally happy in his narration of humorous incidents, and the reverend gentleman enjoys a well-told story as much as any one.

Young People Masquerading.

The masquerade party given by Miss Kate Jackson, daughter of Mr. George Jackson, Thursday evening, was one of the most enjoyable affairs of the season. The company present included from seventy-five to one hundred of the young people of this place and several ladies and gentlemen from a distance. Very pleasing music was rendered by the orchestra composed of Messrs. Lyon, Girod and Bierley.

The costumes were beautiful, including representations of characters from history, poetry, fiction and imagination. Some of them we can give, although of course we do not recollect all of them. Miss Jackson represented a German peasant; Miss Moir, her guest, was, in costume, a perfect personification of mother goose, Miss Jack, of Boalsburg, looked quite oriental as a Japanese lady; Miss Mary Gephart was the belle of the evening as "Folly;" Miss May Barrett also represented the same character very perfectly. Mrs. John Lane was a sister of charity; Miss Melich represented Sappho; Miss Mary Morris and her guest, Miss Wollerton, wore full evening dress with Domino costume. Miss Flora Fox was beautiful as a water sprite and Miss Cleave attracted admiration as a Gypsy Queen. Miss Mary Thomas, Miss Smith and Mrs. James Lane were bewitching as little maids from school. Mrs. Clifford Thomas represented a bride and Miss Brockerhoff personated a noble Roman maiden. Miss Emma Hughes was a pretty peasant girl and Miss Kate Green was true to nature in her character of Mother Goose. Mr. and Mrs. Harry Curtin were demure and modest as Quaker and Quakeress, while Mrs. Howard Lingle was regal as a Spanish lady, Mrs. Andrew Curtin illustrating the character of a Spanish peasant. Miss Minnie Brew was the newspaper girl.

Among the gentlemen Scott Harris, as Oscar Wilde, taught his new philosophy of æstheticism; Wilbur Harris was Mikado, and D. B. Bell was Pu Bah in the same opera. James Hughes was a lady, for "one night only." Dr. Christy, of Altoona, and J. M. Dale, of this place, were priests, Mr. Karscaddon, of Lock Haven, was "Simple Simon," and Mr. Fred Reynolds, although a Mexican, said he was not thirsting for war with Uncle Sam. Mr. Will Curtin personated Count Carnival and Mr. Ed. Ball was a Knight of the Three Stars. Harry Keller made a handsome Charles I. Other gentlemen present, not in costume, were Mr. Chislett and Lt. Davis of the U. S. Navy.

The New School House.

A large force of workmen is now employed on the excavation for the new school building located at the extreme east end of Bishop street. It is not probable that in the "sweet by and by" many of our citizens will have an opportunity to feast their eyes upon the graceful proportions of this structure, as it is too far away from the abode of population to come within the range of vision. It was extremely thoughtful, however, to select such a site. The children who attend it can pursue their studies with so much more profit out in the country, beyond the "hurly burly" of the town. It is also doubly thoughtful that the building was not located further out, as then it might be beyond the point to which the boardwalk extends. It is not probable that a large number will take advantage of John Bartruff's new 5 cent hack line, even if he does put one on the road, as most people consider it of great advantage to walk, and to do so at noon will give the children an appetite for dinner. The people who come to town via. Bishop street will be impressed at once with the belief that Bellefonte is an intelligent town, as a school house at the very entrance to the borough is a sure indication that the school master lives here and lends to it an air of severe intellectuality.

Newsy Notes from Unionville.

A few days ago about thirty young people of this place went on a special car to Snow Shoe to have a basket picnic which was a very enjoyable occasion.

On the 26th, little Willie, son of W. C. Vanvalin had one of his wrists broken by being struck very forcibly while playing with some other boys.

Mr. W. H. Basford, of Lewistown, Pa., has rented the grist mill in this place and expects to take charge on the first of September, and Mr. A. Y. Williams, the retiring miller, will go to the Port Matilda mill, in which he has bought an interest.

Mrs. Mary Ann Griest, widow of the late Nathan Griest, dec'd., and Mrs. Albina Hicklin and her two granddaughters left here on last Friday for their homes, the former in New Castle, Pa., the latter in Toledo, Ohio.

Mr. Cook Jones traded his house and lot in town to the Scholl Bros. for a small farm on Dick's Run and bought a lot from the tannery property, where he is now building a new house.

Mr. Guyer Mattern was in town on the first looking after his political interests, and Mr. Clark Miller, the popular young politician, accompanied him out into the country.

Wm. P. Fisher has set up his engine in readiness for making cider.

The free tooth pulling party were in town last night. One lady who had several large teeth pulled can't say it does not hurt. J.

Cleveland (?) in Johnstown.

Our young friend, Mr. Lem. Brooks, of Boiling Springs, is now in Johnstown, transacting business, and next week expects to go to Pittsburg and then to Chicago. He informs us that one evening, recently, a well-dressed individual with a high felt hat and a "tail" walk came to the hotel where he is staying and registered as Grover Cleveland. Lem thought it rather odd for the President to come sneaking around in that style, but the folks insisted that it was the President, and succeeded in raising quite an excitement about the house. Well, the fellow played his part well until the guests assembled at supper when it became evident that he was an impostor, for when the waiter brought around the bill-of-fare he did not veto it, thus showing that he did not even know how to act the Presidential character in good style.

—Miss Lillie McMurray, daughter of the late Rev. J. S. McMurray, D. D., was married on Wednesday at the hour of noon, to Rev. William Brill, a Methodist minister located at Port Matilda. The ceremony was performed by Rev. George Guyer, of Birmingham, assisted by Rev. D. S. Monroe, D.D., of Bellefonte. The event occurred at the home of Mrs. Lieb in this place, in the presence of a few friends. The groom, who was graduated last year from the Wesleyan University, is a gentleman who is devoted to his life-work, the Gospel ministry, and has what seems to be a useful and promising future. The bride is well fitted by her education and training for the position of a minister's wife, she having been for some time in charge of her lamented father's home. The happy couple have the best wishes of the REPUBLICAN.

Special Delivery of Letters.

According to an order from the postmaster general, the act of August 4 extending the special delivery system to all post-offices will go into effect on the 1st of October. On and after that date if a special delivery stamp is placed upon a letter it must be delivered at once to the party to whom it is addressed, if that party reside or have a place of business within one mile of the post-office. If, however, the regular postage is not paid in full, the postmaster will not be compelled to deliver the letter, even though it has on it a special delivery stamp. The hours within which immediate delivery shall be made will be from 7 a. m. to 11 p. m., unless in special cases otherwise ordered by the postmaster general.

—"Stay at Home My Heart and Rest," words by Longfellow, music by W. A. Ogden. This new song is one of great depth and sweetness. Every one who hears the melody will acknowledge this. Just such a song as we naturally expect from a writer of Mr. Ogden's reputation. Price 40 cents. Ign. Fischer, Publisher, Toledo, O.

—Since the great earthquake in the South John Sourbeck has purchased two large peanut groves at a bankrupt price and has reduced the retail price to five cents per quart. He will regularly receive supplies of the best nuts grown in the South and can sell them at a wonderfully low price. They are the finest nuts in the market. Call and buy some.

—Mr. John Moore was the photographer who "took" the group composing the North Carolina Troubadours, which attracts so much attention. The picture is a very fine one. We have heard persons, in no way interested, praise it highly and express surprise that Bellefonte has an artist who can do such excellent work.

—Substantial new boxes are being put in the postoffice, at least, in the rear part of it. It was difficult, this morning, to tell exactly where to obtain mail, the new ones not being completed, besides being numbered differently and requiring new keys.

—The woods are now peopled by squirrel hunters with guns ready to shoot the first animal of that kind they can see. We believe, however, that there are about a half dozen hunters to one squirrel.

Miraculous Escape.

W. W. Reed, druggist, of Winchester, Ind., writes: "One of my customers, Mrs. Lousia Pike, Bartonia, Randolf Co., Ind., was a long sufferer with consumption, and was given up to die by her physicians. She heard of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption and began buying it of me. In six month's time she walked to this city, a distance of six miles, and is now so much improved she has quit using it. She feels she owes her life to it."

—"Break, Break, Break," Tennyson-Music by Pease. There is much distinction, individuality and charm of invention in this new song, the thoughts flow as though no effort had been employed in finding or noting them down. The style of the song is broad and solemn as the title indicates. Price 40 cents. Ign. Fischer, Publisher, Toledo, O.

—Let the peanut war continue. Who will be the first to reduce the price to 3 cents per quart?

—On Wednesday, says the Lock Haven Democrat, Milford Irvin, employed as a polisher in Mann & Son's axe factory at Mill Hall met with an accident that has caused him much pain and will very likely disfigure him for life. While polishing an axe at a rapidly revolving wheel the axe fell from his hands onto the wheel, the latter in turn throwing the keen-edged tool into Irvin's face, cutting a large gash on one side of his face and almost severing his nose. Mr. Irvin is a young married man and his accident is sad news to his many friends.

For fifteen years I was annoyed with severe pain in my head and discharges into my throat from catarrh. My sense of smell was much impaired. By the use of Ely's Cream Balm I have overcome these troubles.—J.B. Case, St. Denis Hotel, New York.

It is now about five years since I first began selling Ely's Cream Balm, and from the time of its first introduction there has been a growing demand for it, and so far it has given very great satisfaction to my customers. I consider it a catarrh remedy of genuine merit. —A. B. Burns, Druggist, Montrose, Pa.

—A lad named Doyle, residing at Neff's Mills, Huntingdon county, was bitten by a copperhead snake a few evenings ago. His body soon became fearfully swollen and for a time his suffering was fearful. The application of onion poultices relieved the sufferer and he is now doing well.

AN EXTRAORDINARY OFFER.

To All Wanting Employment.

We want Live, Energetic and Capable Agents in every county in the United States and Canada, to sell a patent article of great merit, ON ITS MERITS. An article having a large sale, paying over 100 per cent profit, having no competition, and on which the agent is protected in the exclusive sale by a deed given for each and every county he may secure from us. With all these advantages to our agents and the fact that it is an article that can be sold to every house owner, it might not be necessary to make an "EXTRAORDINARY OFFER" to secure good agents at once, but we have concluded to make it to show, not only our confidence in the merits of our invention, but in its salability by any agent that will handle it with energy. Our agents now at work are making from $150 to $200 a month clear and this fact makes it safe for us to make our offer to all who are out of employment. Any agent that will give our business a thirty days' trial and fail to clear at least $100 in this time, ABOVE ALL EXPENSES, can return all goods unsold to us and we will refund the money paid for them. Any agent or general agent who would like ten or more counties and work them through sub-agents for ninety days and fail to clear at least $750 ABOVE ALL EXPENSES, can return all unsold and get their money back. No other employer of agents ever dared to make such offers, nor would we if we did not know that we have agents now making more than double the amount we guaranteed; and but two sales a day would give a profit of over $125 a month, and that one of our agents took eighteen orders in one day. Our large descriptive circulars explain our offer fully, and these we wish to send to everyone out of employment who will send us three one cent stamps for postage. Send at once and secure the agency in time for the boom, and go to work on the terms named in our extraordinary offer. We would like to have the address of all the agents, sewing machine solicitors and carpenters in the country, and ask any reader of this paper who reads this offer, to send us at once the name and address of all such they know. Address at once, or you will lose the best chance ever offered to those out of employment to make money. RENNER MANUFACTURING CO., 116 Smithfield St., Pittsburg, Pa.

THE NARROW ESCAPE

Of a Massachusetts Engineer.

Sleeplessness after fatigue and health after disease are two of the sweetest experiences known to me. Fourteen years is a long time to suffer, yet Mr. Peter Lawler, of Dalton, Mass., had led a miserable life for that period through the presence of stone in the bladder. He did obtain temporary relief, but nothing more. Last January he called on Dr. David Kennedy, of Rondout, N. Y., who said, after an examination: "Mr. Lawler, you have stone in the bladder. We will first try DR. DAVID KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY before risking an operation." A few days later the following letter

DALTON, Mass., Feb. 6.

DEAR DR. KENNEDY: The day after I came home I passed two gravel stones, and am doing nicely now. PETER LAWLER.

Dr. Kennedy now has the stones at his office, and they are sufficiently formidable to justify the claim that KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY is the leading specific for stone in the bladder. In his letter Mr. Lawler mentions that FAVORITE REMEDY also cured him of rheumatism. The subjoined certificate tells its own story:

OLD BERKSHIRE MILLS,
DALTON, Mass., April 27, 1882.

Mr. Peter Lawler has been a resident of this town for the past seventeen years, and in our employ for fifteen, and in all these years he has been a good and respected citizen of this town and community. He has had some chronic disease to our knowledge for most of the time, but now claims to be, and is, in apparent good health.

CHARLES O. BROWN, President.

$1 bottle; 6 for $5. All drug ists.

Dr. David Kennedy's "Favorite Remedy" (Rondout, N. Y.)—It is not a mere soother, temporarily, of pain, but by its alterative action purifies the blood, restores a healthful condition to the diseased organs, and even dissolves and causes the expulsion of gravel and stone from the kidneys and bladder. The testimony of hundreds who have been cured by it vouches for this.

Local Department.

—Hot enough for September.

—Mr. George Jackson, Jr., is clerking in Zeller's drug store.

—A phantom party was given on Wednesday evening by Mr. and Mrs. Jno Lane.

—There was no quorum and consequently no meeting of council on Monday evening.

—Will Gray's eloquent tongue will make a great mark for him some day. See if it don't.

—R. M. Magee, Esq., and his agreeable family are at home again after an extended absence.

—Wonder how soon John Sourbeck will reduce the price of his peanuts to 3 cents per quart.

—The Pleasant Gap Band and the Horn Town Rangers will be prominent in the parade this evening.

—That perfect fitting suit worn by Moyer Lyon the early part of this week was purchased of Lyon & Co.

—Two of the Misses Landis, daughters of Harry Landis, departed Wednesday for a visit with friends at a distance.

—The Daily Democrat, of Lock Haven, always a good paper, has suddenly become larger handsomer and better than ever.

—Col. Victor Piollet, R. H. Thomas and Leonard Rhone will surely be at the Grangers' Picnic, on the 16th, to deliver addresses.

—The meeting of the Good Templars, which was to have been held Tuesday, was postponed until Wednesday evening at 7:45 o'clock.

—The receipts from the market since last report were $13.25. The street commissioner also gave the borough $2.50 for extra work done.

—D. G. Bush, Esq., arrived home Tuesday and is recovering from the severe illness which afflicted him while away from home.

—The Bellefonte Iron Company are occupying their new business office, and are very pleasantly and comfortably located for business.

—Many people are of opinion that Overseer Schofield seriously slighted other editors in not inviting all to dine at Willow Bank house.

—Miss Bella Willower, from Baltimore, and Miss Laura Kessinger, of Hublersburg, this county, spent Wednesday with friends in Bellefonte.

—The delegation of the Odd Fellows Lodge who visited Snow Shoe on Tuesday, came back next day. They were successful in instituting a lodge.

—Mrs. Beaver presented to the Nail Workers' Beaver Club a handsome picture of Gen. Beaver, which the club received with a vote of thanks.

—Mr. A. A. Dale ably assisted Chairman Johnson on Tuesday in preparing for the convention and we have cause to thank him for favors rendered.

—It was a most graceful act for Mr. Guyer Mattern to yield so readily to what was for the benefit of the Republican party, and he should be gratefully remembered.

—We understand that the force of workmen at the Nail Works was materially increased this week, making it larger than ever before. This indicates prosperity.

—The Reformed congregation of this place has extended a call to Rev. W. H H. Snyder, of Harrisburg, to become its pastor, and there is excellent reason to believe that he will accept.

—Five of the school rooms in the public school building have been refurnished with very handsome desks and seats. The furniture was purchased from the Bloomsburg Furniture Company.

—For reasons not necessary to mention, the Logan Hose bell was not rang Tuesday evening, as announced, the time for testing it having been postponed until Wednesday evening.

—We repeat the announcement previously made that the borough schools will be opened next week—the High School on Tuesday, the 14th, and the other schools on Wednesday, the 15th.

—The opening of the High school has been postponed until the 14th inst., and of the other schools until the 15th. The delay in getting the new desks in is, we believe the reason for the postponement.

—Messrs. C. W. Hunter and Simon Sellers, of Half Moon township, called Wednesday. They express satisfaction with the Republican ticket nominated and will do their best to secure its election.

—On Friday evening a select dance will be given in Curtin township. Mr. Joseph DeHaas is managing it. Prof. Young's orchestra from Lock Haven will be in attendance. It promises to be a very fine affair.

—Ed. Rankin, operator for the Western Union in this place, now occupies a new and comfortable chair, which will enable him to send telegraph messages much more rapidly than formerly, although he was always pretty quick at it.

Thoughts Saved from Sunday.

The pulpits in the churches of this place were ably supplied on Sunday and the choicest of moral maxims and religious teachings given to the large congregations who met to hear and worship. If all the church edifices were as well filled as those of the Presbyterians and Methodists, which we attended,—the former in the morning and the latter at night—the proportion of church-going people was unusually large.

In the Presbyterian church Rev. Joseph H. Barnard, a former pastor, ministered to the congregation in a way which was rendered more earnest and effective because of the close relations he had sustained to the people. Occasional references to this fact in his prayers established a chord of sympathetic feeling between himself and the congregation.

His text was a beautiful one from Psalm 1:3, it being part of the Psalmist's description of an upright man—

And he shall be like a tree planted by the rivers of water, that bringeth forth his fruit in his season; his leaf also shall not wither: and whatsoever he doeth shall prosper.

The thought expressed, in scholarly, forcible language, was about as follows: It is indeed good to be like such a tree. It is customary in Scripture to compare man's moral life to the developments in nature, and no teacher did this more frequently or beautifully than Christ. No comparison could be more appropriate than that of the tree. Just such perfection of growth, prosperity and fruitfulness as is ascribed to the tree, with its proper surroundings, or environments, every man should show. A man with splendid physical development and nothing else would be only like a tree of great trunk and huge limbs, shorn of all foliage and fruit. A man having only intellectual acquirements, and nothing else, would be like a tree bearing only leaves—like the cedar—useful in some respects, but not fulfilling all the requirements of usefulness. "Nothing but leaves" was the condemnation spoken by Christ against the barren fig tree. But the Creator would have us answer all the conditions ascribed to the perfect tree—and the man who does not is abnormal. Some, in drawing their analogies from nature, may dispute this, pointing to the different growths of nature—the thistle and the rose, the bramble bush and the fruitful vine, the crab apple and the tree of perfect fruit. Yet, we would not ascribe to God the creation of any such a man as in his moral attributes resembles the bramble bush or the tart crab apple. Man was made in the image of God, and as in the natural world the rule prevails that each brings forth fruit after its kind, so it holds good with man, who is the greatest of God's creation. It is only by communion with God, by partaking of His heavenly nature and having for our environments the water of His divine grace, as the tree had the "river of waters," that we can supply the most important element that is lacking in man's moral nature, and be restored to original perfection.

In the evening the same gentleman preached an equally excellent sermon from Philippians 2:9.

"Wherefore God also hath highly exalted Him, and given Him a name that is above every name."

We did not hear the evening discourse, but the congregation were delighted by it, as they were by all his ministrations of the day.

LAZINESS CONDEMNED.

Rev. D. S. Monroe, D. D., Sunday evening, preached the third of a series of sermons on the popular evils and popular questions of the day. He said that "laziness" is one of the most prevalent sins and read as a text for his discourse on that subject, from Proverbs 24:30-34:

"I went by the field of the slothful, and by the vineyard of the man void of understanding;

And, lo, it was all grown over with thorns, and nettles had covered the face thereof, and the stone wall thereof was broken down.

Then I saw, and considered well; I looked upon it, and received instruction.

Yet a little sleep, a little slumber, a little folding of the hands to sleep;

So shall thy poverty come as one that travelleth, and thy want as an armed man."

Without giving an analysis of the discourse, we will merely say that he represented laziness as the source of many of the evils of the day. He said that the young man will often spend more time in adjusting the curl of his mustache or the young girl in arranging a curl on her forehead than the former will in securing a livelihood or the latter in attending to her household duties. He enforced as a truth that all the members of our body—hands, feet, eyes, etc.—are made for motion and usefulness. That God will never do for a man what he can do for himself. That God will cooperate with man in his labors, making us "laborers togethe rwith God." That "I cannot" is responsible for many defeats, while "I can" has achieved great victories. Activity in spiritual affairs would accomplish greater results just as it does in the transactions of the world.

The congregation was large and the sermon was listened to with profit. Next Sunday evening this series will conclude with a discourse on "Amusements," in which Rev. Dr. Monroe will tell the young people just what amusements they can engage in and what they cannot, and his great experience and naturally genial, healthful nature will enable him to give the most valuable and correct advice on the subject.

THE REPUBLICAN COUNTY CONVENTION.

The Excellent Work Accomplished on Tuesday Afternoon.

A STRONG TICKET NOMINATED.

No convention of the Republican party ever held in this county has attracted more attention and interest than that of Tuesday afternoon. The Court room was filled. The delegates were chosen from among the very best Republicans in the county and each delegate was a man whose countenance bespoke his high character. A single glance at the sea of faces was sufficient to give the utmost confidence in its deliberations. The day was delightful and the feeling on the part of the delegates and of the public, was extremely hopeful of good results.

The Zion band was present and its music never sounded better. All the windows being open and the band playing softly, the music did not have that harsh sound often noticed when a band plays inside the house. Everybody enjoyed the airs which it rendered.

Hon. James P. Coburn was nominated and unanimously elected to the position of permanent chairman, and in response delivered a very excellent speech of thanks, hoping the convention would do good work and be harmonious in all its deliberations.

Col. D. S. Keller was elected secretary and Mr. Cyrus Goss, of Ferguson township, and Capt. Harry Simler, of Philipsburg, were chosen assistant secretaries.

On motion, a committee of five was appointed on resolutions and while it was absent the band played for the entertainment of the delegates. The committee consisted of Isaac Mitchell, Samuel Bailey, Lewis Walters, Samuel Aley and Dr. J. A. Thompson.

When the committee returned, nominations were said to be in order for members of Assembly. Col. D. S. Keller said that the name he would place in nomination was that of a citizen whose abilities are well known. His integrity is of the most unswerving kind. He had previously been honored by his party and even against great odds was almost successful. The name of Jno. G. Love, Esq., of Bellefonte, elicited applause.

W. E. Gray, one of the youthful but rapidly rising members of the Centre county bar, arose in his capacity as a delegate to name one who, though young in years, was the unanimous choice of his district. He was a friend of the workingman and as a business man possessed skill and ability. He was a man of great generosity of heart and his word is equal to his written obligation. Amid cheers, he named G. G. Mattern, of Patton township.

The nominations, on motion, closed and the secretary was instructed to cast the ballot of the convention.

For Prothonotary, Capt. Austin Curtin placed in nomination Geo. M. Boal, of Potter township. He spoke of his competency, his fealty to the Republican party, his occupation as a farmer, his business ability and his brilliant war record. Cheers followed his speech. After another delegate had placad in nomination the name of R. K. Wilson, of Marion township, the nominations closed and Mr. Boal was chosen on first ballot, which was as follows:

Boal	67
Wilson	21

The nomination was made unanimous.

For district attorney, J. H. Lichtenthaler, Esq., of Philipsburg, was the only one whose name was placed in nomination and his nomination made by acclamation.

Three names were put in nomination for county surveyor, viz., Jesse Cleaver, of Unionville; William H. Snyder, of Liberty township; and David Pletcher, of Howard township. Only one ballot was required. It resulted:

Cleaver	45
Snyder	22
Pletcher	21

Mr. Cleaver's nomination was made unanimous.

After three Congressional conferrees had been appointed in the persons of W. H. Wigton, Philipsburg; Cyrus Goss, Ferguson township, and John Kline, Bellefonte, a resolution was adopted that Col. James P. Coburn be the choice of the convention for Congress. This resolution brought the doubly-honored gentleman to his feet in a pointed speech of acknowledgment, wherein he recounted some of the great deeds of the Republican party. The Republicans, when they retired, left $350,000,000 in the National Treasury for Democrats to fight over. The party had re-established the good faith and credit of the government, given to the slave his freedom, the laborer protection, and pointed to Prohibitionists the way to success. (This remark produced the loudest cheers of the convention.)

Three Senatorial conferrees were appointed, viz., Col. D. S. Keller, Capt. Austin Curtin and E. C. Humes, Esq.

Wilbur F. Reeder, Esq., was chosen chairman of the county committee, without opposition.

Secretary Keller read the resolutions, which were adopted. We give them below:

The Republican party of Centre county, in convention assembled, declare as follows:

1st. We heartily endorse the platform adopted by the State Convention on June 30, 1886, in its every plank, and we pledge our earnest support to the candidates then placed in nomination.

2nd. General James A. Beaver, our candidate for Governor, and his associates on the State ticket, are entitled to and should receive the cordial and enthusiastic support of all citizens who favor the fostering of our industries by a protective tariff; who are opposed to the nefarious work of importing pauper, criminal and contract labor, and who believe that labor and capital are of right and should be mutual and dependent in their relations to each other.

3d. We are in favor of providing prompt measures for the submission to the voters of the Commonwealth the question of adopting an amendment to the State constitution prohibiting the manufacture and sale of intoxicating drinks as a beverage, and the legislative candidates this day nominated are instructed, in the event of their election, to use all honorable means as members of the legislature to provide for the prompt submission of this question to a vote of the people, in accordance with the true spirit of our institutions.

4th. We applaud the action of the employes of the Bellefonte Nail Company, who, voluntarily and without distinction of party, gave the lie to the vile slander that our standard-bearer, Gen. Beaver, has ever had aught to do with the store order system. We denounce the charge as false and malacious, and we cheerfully and proudly refer all accusations of unfair dealings on the part of General Beaver with his employes to the workmen themselves, who are best able to answer the question.

5th. We heartily endorse the ticket this day placed in nomination and pledge our earnest and cordial support, to the end that it may be triumphantly elected.

ISAAC MITCHELL,
LEWIS WALTERS,
JAMES A. THOMPSON,
SAMUEL H. BAILEY,
SAMUEL ALEY.

After adjournment, calls were made for a speech from Mr. Love, who responded with his usual eloquence, Mr. Mattern also thanking the convention for the honor conferred.

ALL FOR BEAVER.

The Citizens of Centre County Welcome Him Home.

EIGHT HUNDRED MEN IN A TORCHLIGHT PARADE—SEVERAL ELOQUENT ADDRESSES.

The extent and grandeur of the reception given by the citizens of this vicinity to General Beaver, on his arrival Tuesday night from California, surpassed the highest anticipations For perfect success, genuine enthusiasm and brilliant display and hearty good feeling, it has never been surpassed and seldom equalled in the annals of such events in Centre county. So eager were the assembled masses of men to form in line that long before the time announced bright red and blue uniforms with the white caps and glitteriug badges were conspicuous as they fell into line along Spring street, the torches burning with more than ordinary brilliancy and the fear was that the oil would be exhausted before the arrival of the train with the honored citizen for whom all this blaze of glory was intended.

Chief Marshall H. S. Hale with his assistants Dr. J. D. Geissinger and F. V. Jodon, rode back and forth on their gaily caparisoned steeds assigning the gathering hosts to their proper positions and executed their part of the duties with signal success. Soon that enthusiastic gentleman, Mr. A. V. Miller, of Pleasant Gap, appeared with the splendid band and about 125 of the best citizens of Spring township, all carrying torches. Capt. Austin Curtin marshaling an equal number of the manly employes of Curtin's works and about seventy-five of the citizens of Milesburg and Boggs township. Most of these wore gay uniforms and made a remarkably fine appearance They were accompanied by the Citizens' Cornet band of Milesburg, a musical organization of which any community should be proud. The Milesburg Beaver Club is captained by James Bradley, with A. C. Moore assistant marshall.

Near the time for the arrival of the train the paraders massed themselves on High street. There the spectacle was extremely brilliant. The pavements on either side were thronged by the thousands of citizens and others who had assembled to witness the grand event. The bands played, fireworks sent their fiery messages toward the blue, starry vault of heaven and the serene moon looked down on the scene, the man in the lunar orb seeming to be exulting over the bright spectacular display. The faint sound of the locomotive whistle in the distance was the signal for a series of huzzas, prolonged for about ten mtnutes.

Gen. Beaver and his son, Gilbert, alighted from the train. The former was at once conducted to a luxrious carriage, drawn by four horses. With him were Mr. Robert Valentine, Col. A. Wilson Norris and J. G. Love, Esq. The Milesburg band followed the marshalls in leading the parade which moved up High street. The Nail Workers' Beaver Club followed, about 150 men in line. They presented a magnificent spectacle. The parade shirts which they wear are a dark blue, with a sort of fatigue light felt hat and glittering badges presenting on its face a splendid portrait of Gen Beaver. Their belts are inscribed "N. W. B. C." Following this was the carriage containing the four gentlemen already mentioned. They moved through a line of brilliant fire works and flaming torches. The shouts of the populace rent the air and Gen. Beaver had his high hat off nearly all the time, responding to the acclamations from all quarters. Then the line of men took up their march, with the Pleasant Gap band following the carriage, the Spring township Beaver Club, Curtins band, Curtin's Works Beaver Club, Milesburg drum corps, Milesburg Beaver Club, Boggs township Beaver Club, Zion band, Beaver Home Club and many conveyances containing citizens. The Beaver Home Club numbered about 200 and a moderate estimate of the number of men in line is 800. The people did not tire of witnessing the inspiring sight. The occupants of the carriage were conducted to an elevated platform in Diamond Square, the paraders being stationed around them and the people filling the large space.

Robert Valentine as president of the meeting congratulated the citizens on the success of the demonstration and introduced J. G. Love, Esq. That gentleman made a speech of surpassing eloquence in his welcome to General Beaver, who responded in the warmest, most affectionate and feeling terms. Especially did he impress the fact that the reception was entirely unexpected and surprising. He spoke of the wonderful impressions his trip across the continent had made upon him and then said that he admired Bellefonte and Pennsylvania more than ever. He alluded to his competitor, Mr. Black, in high terms. He was followed by Col. Norris in a grand address, his references to the loveliness of Bellefonte being very happily expressed. He hoped the canvass would be conducted in a gentlemanly way. Col. Coburn and Col. D. H. Hastings were also compelled to make addresses.

The meeting ended about 10:30 o'clock, General Beaver being conducted to his residence by the long line of paraders. Thus ended a certainly auspicious beginning of the campaign which will result in the election of Gen. Beaver and the entire Republican ticket.

—An attempt was made at about four o'clock Wednesday a. m. to rob Graner's large store at Snow Shoe. The men bored about twenty-five holes around the lock of the door, sufficient to remove quite a large section of it. Before it was removed, however, the watchman inside considered it about time to scare the robbers away and he shot through the door. It is believed that his shot did some execution as a man was heard to exclaim, "I am shot." The robbers departed at once and have not been captured.
